ORLAND TOWNSHIP — To be painted in the role of the villain in the catastrophic fireworks explosion of March 6 south of Orland Park is both unjust and incorrect, according to its owner, Anthony Cartolano.

"Many statements contained in the news media were completely false. I don't know where they got their information," said Cartolano. He added there have been no explosions in the past other than controlled tests; he did not have dynamite on the premises; and fire hydrants were not available because water lines are not laid in the unincorporated area where it is usual for owners to have an individual well.

In an exclusive interview with this Orland Park HERALD correspondent, Cartolano and his wife gave their side of the "Big Story" that exploded in every major Chicago area newspaper, television station and radio station. To date Cartolano has refused to speak with any news reporters.

The fortyish, crew cut Cartolano and his wife sat with me in their well appointed living room. He was in a sleeveless white t-shirt and wore no shoes, the sign of a southwest suburbanite who wishes to save the carpet from the Palos-Orland clay. She wore the uniform of the housewife, slacks and top.

The short, stocky owner said that after the first explosion at about 2:05 p.m. he went out to the Number 1 building and three seconds later its door blew into his face.

When he saw he couldn't be of help he went to shut off the valve on a big butane tank.

Cartolano said he then got the girls out of the break area building and went down the driveway to the road. An Orland Park police squad car was in the driveway.

"Officer Ordonez would not be alive today if I didn't get him out of the car and push him down to a ditch," he said. Ordonez' 1972 police car was a complete loss, and the officer hospitalized for cuts and shock.

"I was the last one out and I made sure everyone was out except the three in the two back buildings. I made sure there was nothing I could do to help anyone back there."

He said he stood at the gate, 200 feet from the buildings, until all the five explosions were over keeping people, cars and even some volunteer firemen out. "I still believe if I hadn't stayed there and helped to get the people out, and keep people out, there would be a lot more dead."

He then surveyed the area from a helicopter to determine if the fire trucks could safely go in. He says he saw that the considerable amount of fire had not spread to the two buildings which were left standing and which stored powder. Cartolano added "The fire departments and the police departments did a beautiful job."

The company was started as a new business in 1955, and moved to unincorporated land in Orland Township near 162nd Street and 104th Avenue in 1956. Contrary to reports he did not inherit the business from his father-in-law who conducted a similar business in Schiller Park.

Mrs. Cartolano's father and grandfather and Cartolano's father were killed in an unexplained explosion that leveled the Schiller Park plant in 1954. Cartolano learned the business in the Schiller Park company.

According to the Cartolanos all their buildings were above ground. There were no tunnels.

"This is the first explosion we've ever had," he said. The plant used flash powder and a mixture of chemicals in making fireworks for displays at such places as White Sox Park, the Cook County American Legion Fourth of July Celebration at Soldier Field and many Independence Day exhibitions including that held at Orland Park each year.

Explosives were never stored in buildings where people worked. Everything was done to make the buildings explosion proof according to Cartolano. Non-metallic clothes and soft shoes were worn by employees, and rubber mats used throughout.

The cause of the explosion is unknown although officials and Cartolano have worked all week to determine it. He says the trouble is there is nothing left to give any clue to the cause.

The former World War II air corps mechanic who saw duty in the South Pacific, said only a spark or a fire "would ignite anything we used."

Two security dogs patrolled the fenced premises at night.

Cartolano said he did not need a state license. "We're regulated by the Federal Government and we have a federal license. We had our inspections from the state and the Orland Park Fire Protection District all the time." He said they would show up to inspect unexpectedly.

He showed this reporter the last yearly report of the Fire Protection District dated April 12, 1971. There were no violations listed and each item showed a clean bill of health.

Mrs. Cartolano said, "The girls who worked for my husband have said that he was a wonderful boss and that they knew he took every safety precaution." She added that her children helped their father on weekends cleaning up the plant, and that he would never allow his children where there would be danger.

The mother of four children ranging in age from nine to 16 years said the experience in Schiller Park made him very cautious.

The older two children attend Providence High School in New Lenox, and the younger attend Homer District School.

According to Cartolano the Fire Protection District was notified whenever the plant did testing. He said the powder has been removed from the two buildings that remain standing.

When Cartolano built his plant there was no one in the area except one farmhouse to the northeast on 104th Avenue.

"I was there before it was zoned residential. Nobody told us it was rezoned until we had a letter in the summer of 1971 from the Cook County Zoning Department. As far as I was concerned I was operating legitimately."

Living within five miles of his business in a well groomed upper middle class subdivision he said he felt he was part of the community of Orland and did business locally. He is a member of the Orland Park Chamber of Commerce.

Regarding a statement that he had been receiving powder "wetter than usual" that he allegedly made, he said, "I have never talked to anyone about chemicals." He was supplied chemicals by the Hummel Chemical Supply Co.

Of the 23 employees in the plant at the time all have been accounted for except two who are still missing. Two others were killed in the explosion.

The Melrose Fireworks Display Company was one of about 40 firms in the country making material for fireworks displays. Cartolano rated his plant as "large" in this area.

For him there was no slack season and 27-28 employees was a normal work force. Part of the year the fireworks were made and the remainder of the year they were set off at exhibitions under the supervision of the company.

He doesn't know right now what he will do next or if he will rebuild the business. One thing he knows is that many towns will have no Fourth of July fireworks this year.

The Cartolanos are pleasant people with whom to talk.

You can't help but sympathize with a fellow who has literally had his life's work blow up in his face into a human disaster.

You can't help but want to hear his side of the heretofore one-sided story.

The cyclone fence, its links fused with the makings of merriment, still stands, enclosing the scene of the cruel disappearance.

Officials comb the enclosure for a club. A scrap. An answer. Anything.

Sighseeing cars tour slowly by risking collisions as they gaze — at nothing.

People walk the scorched land looking for — what? Some cling to the fence watching the officials.

The flat land is quiet now. The creek winds slowly along.

State to study local taxes

JOLIET — Robert Lehnhausen, director of the state department of local government, is slated to come to Will County soon to consult with Owen Pomeroy, county supervisor of assessments, it was announced by Thomas Feehan, president of the Joliet Region Chamber of Commerce. The exact date of his coming was not given.

Lehnhausen is scheduled to make recommendations concerning the 1971 real estate assessments in the county. He will evaluate Will County procedures, it was said, and relate them to studies made by professional consultants for making fair and reasonable assessments.

Feehan explained that Lehnhausen's department is responsible for providing assistance to local governments. He heads a department that has been created during the administration of Gov. Ogilvie.

Although the State of Illinois does not receive any revenue from Will County real estate taxes," Feehan said, "the department of local government was created to help taxpayers receive better service from government at all levels."

"Will County's tax problems stem from the quadrennial reassessment which takes place every four years, coupled with the accelerated growth of the area, and increased demands for local government services, it was explained.

In past years, according to reports, some township officials have been criticized for under-assessing real estate property and not following state law. This has resulted in a 13 percent factor added to assessments all across the county, it was pointed out. Observers say it is believed continued under-assessment could jeopardize both state and federal aid to local governing units.

Director Lehnhausen is a former mayor of Peoria. Since he has been in office he has visited several Will County governing units and made recommendations for improved services and efficiency.

Zone board meets tonight

FRANKFORT — It is expected there will be a large turnout for the meeting of the village zoning board of appeals tonight March 15, in the village hall.

Mayor Glenn Warning at the village board meeting last week told trustees that he believed the zoning board session would be an important one and recommended their attendance.

One of the cases to come before the board that appears to have roused the most interest is the petition of Charles P. Bruti, as purchaser and W.L. Patterson as owner, of the property at the southwest corner of White Street and McDonald Lane. The petitioners want it zoned for business and ask a variation of landscaping and parking requirements.

The petition asks for a variation in the square footage for the rear yard from 2,361 to 1,350 square feet, and in front they would use the first 12 feet of the 25-foot strip required by ordinance, for parking instead of landscaping the entire strip.

The comprehensive plan for Frankfort provides the eventual location of business along White Street, but some residents are opposed to the plan.

Officials are concerned about the variation sought, wondering if it would establish a precedent.

Another petition asking for a business classification for a lot in a residential zone is that of Robert E. Novak, purchaser, and Gloria R. Roy, owner. They ask B-1 zoning for the property at 120 Oak Street. There is a notation to the effect that property to the east, north and west is zoned R-1 (single family dwellings) and to the south are the grounds of Frankfort Grade School.

The third petition slated for hearing is that of Joseph Kupina who is asking for a change in classification from R-1 to R-3 (multiple family dwelling) for the property at 239 Railroad Street.

Village may provide school aid

NEW LENOX — Action taken by the plan commission and the village of New Lenox on a proposed ordinance, requiring real estate developers to aid schools through site grants for new buildings; or cash in lieu of land gifts is expected to be followed by other villages in the Lincoln-Way High School district.

The area school district are represented by an Illinois school consulting firm to help develop the plan.

The proposal was placed before the New Lenox village plan commission at regular meeting last week and the commission's recommendation is likely to be presented to the village board at its meeting tonight, March 15 it was said.

The plan commission asked Superintendent Arnold Tyler, of the New Lenox grade school district whether such ordinances have been tested in the courts. Tyler said that he knew of no court cases on the subject but that State Senator Harris Fawell, of Naperville, has two bills pending that would make such contributions state law.

The schools and residents are hard hit when housing developments are launched in a district. More homes, whether they are single family or multiple family dwellings mean more children and more children mean more or expanded school facilities.

The plan commission said there is a two year lapse before any taxes come in from new homes, but in the meantime schools are paying more teachers, and buying more supplies as well as paying contractors and interest on the bonds they have sold to pay those contractors.

The schools have worked out formula on which all have agreed in the area to provide for the contribution of land or cash by the developers. The developer would pass this cost on to the prospective purchaser so the new resident would be paying his share right off instead of waiting for a couple of years.

The land dedication would be determined by obtaining the ratio of estimated children to be served in each school classification over the maximum recommended number of students, then applying to each such ratio to the minimum recommended number of acres for a school site of each such school classification.

For elementary schools the recommended sites are 11 acres for 600 pupils, 19 acres for a junior high with 900 pupils.

Frankfort physician dies

FRANKFORT — Private funeral services were conducted Monday morning, March 13, for Dr. Walter V. Hedges, 86, well-known Frankfort physician and surgeon and founder of the medical clinic here bearing his name.

Dr. Hedges died last Thursday, March 9, at Silver Cross Hospital, Joliet, where he had been a patient for two weeks.

The services were held at Frankfort Community Chapel with the Rev. LaVern Smith, pastor of St. Peter's United Church of Christ, officiating. Interment was in Skyline Memorial Park Cemetery, Mokena.

Dr. Hedges was born Jan. 19, 1886 at Fairbault, Minn. He was graduated from the Hahnemann Homeopathic School of Medicine and after serving his internship at Chicago Memorial Hospital came to Frankfort one day and liked what he saw, he afterwards related, and decided to practice there.

He began his practice here July 5, 1908, and remained there since except for the year, 1919, which he spent in Europe in the further study of medicine.

A Fellow in the American College of Surgeons and a former chief of staff at Silver Cross Hospital, he was honored on his 50th anniversary as a member of the American Medical Association. He was rated as one of the leading surgeons in the area.

During his many years of practice in eastern Will and south Cook counties, Dr. Hedges estimated he delivered more than 2,000 babies.

As a country doctor he made his calls with horse and buggy. When that means of transportation was invaded by motor power Dr. Hedges had one of the first automobiles in Frankfort but because of the quality of the roads in rainy weather real horses were frequently called into service to aid sputtering horsepower. In those early days of his practice, he often received his fees in the form of eggs, poultry and sausage.

In 1941 Dr. Raymond Hiroshige of Hawaii became associated with Dr. Hedges, returning to his native land in 1946. He visited Dr. Hedges in Frankfort only a few months ago.

When Dr. Hiroshige left in 1946 Dr. Hedges became associated with Dr. Claude Otto, a graduate of the University of Nebraska College of Medicine. Together they formed the Hedges Clinic, which now staffs nine doctors, a considerable office staff, and three pharmacists, including Roger Hedges.

Roger is one of two sons, who with the widow, the former Irma Boyer, and two grandchildren survive. The other son is Alan Hedges, of Downers Grove, a foreign buyer for Marshall Field and Co. He was in Europe on business but returned last Friday after being notified of his father's death.

In 1955 in the course of its centennial celebration, the village of Frankfort honored Dr. Hedges as "the citizen who made the greatest contribution to the community."

A bronze plaque in the clinic reads: "In honor of Walter V. Hedges, M.D., and Fellow in the American College of Surgeons, for his exceptional and untiring service to the community since 1908."

He was a member of the Will-Grundy Medical Society, St. Peter's United Church of Christ, Mount Joliet Lodge 42, AF-AM, Joliet Commandary Knights Templar and Modern Woodmen of America.

Fair shows science skills

FRANKFORT — Twenty-nine projects were on display at the annual Science Fair conducted in the Frankfort Grade School gym, representing the cooperative effort of 56 sixth, seventh and eighth grade pupils.

Judges from Lincoln-Way High School, Willowcrest School of Mokena, Oakview School of New Lenox, the Borg-Warner and Mobil Foam Companies of Frankfort awarded five first, 18 seconds and six thirds.

The three projects receiving top scoring will represent Frankfort at the South Suburban Regional Science Exposition at Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago, April 8.

These projects are, "The Effect of Centrifugal Force on Mice," the work of Sharon Jadczyk and Helene Romb; "Is There Any Spice in Your Life?" by Roy Johnson and Gregg Freeh, and "The Effect of Different Musical Tones With Plants."

A project judged outstanding at the regional exhibit will go to the state contest at the University of Illinois May 12-13.

Frankfort has sent projects to the state contest for the past two years. Co-sponsors of this year's local science fair were Kenneth Reiss, science teacher for the eighth grade and Ronald Elmore, sixth and seventh grade science teacher.

Many unopposed candidates

Will voters face dull primaries

WILL COUNTY — Voters in Will County will go to the polls next Tuesday, March 21, to nominate their candidates for the November general election.

Outside of the occasional appearance of some of the candidates for state office in Joliet there has been little active campaigning. One of the reasons for this — probably the major one — according to observers is the lack of contests on the county tickets. None of the county candidates have opposition.

In the county the offices to be filled in November will be clerk of the circuit court, recorder of deeds, state's attorney, coroner and county auditor.

The primary candidates for these offices are:

Sam H. Paul, Troy, for circuit court clerk. Kenneth L. George, Elwood, for recorder. Martin Rudman, Joliet, for state's attorney. Willard G. Blood, Joliet, for coroner. Anne Tugler, Homer Township, for county auditor.

DEMOCRAT

John E. Fitzgerald, Manhattan, for circuit clerk. Val A. Galle, Joliet, for recorder. Franklin D. Burke, Joliet, for state's attorney. Patrick J. O'Neil, Homer Township, for coroner. Stanley B. Waznis, Joliet, for county auditor.

* Incumbent.

The only local contest on the Republican ticket is for state senator, James F. (Jim) Bell, of Joliet, a member of the Will County Board of Supervisors and a son of the late James Bell, former county treasurer, is the choice of the party's screening committee.

He is being opposed by Louis F. Bottino, of Wilmington, a member of the faculty at Lewis College, a former county superintendent of schools, and a former state representative. The Democratic candidate for state senator is LeRoy Van Dune, Joliet, who was defeated when he ran for the senate in the last election.

This part of the county, including Manhattan, Lockport and Homer, lies in the 42nd legislative district.

For state representative the Republicans have two candidates and the Democrats two. The three candidates receiving the most votes will be elected. On the Republican ticket is W. Robert Blair, speaker of the house, who resides in Park Forest and has served several terms in the legislature. His running mate is Harry D. Leinenweber, a Joliet attorney.

John J. Houlihan, who has served as the Democratic representative from this district for several terms is running for congress without opposition. He will be opposed in the fall by George M. O'Brien, Joliet attorney and Republican member of the house of representatives in the Illinois general assembly.

Running for state representative on the Democratic ticket is George E. Sangmeister, who resides at Mokena, where he also serves as village attorney; has a law office at Frankfort and is a member of a Joliet law firm. He is a former magistrate and a former state's attorney and has been active in Democratic politics for many years. His running mate in the primary is Eugene F. Duff, Joliet, a teacher, a former member of the Joliet city council.

At the top of the ticket the Republicans do not have anyone running for the presidential nomination but the Democrats have Senators Edmund S. Muskie and Eugene H. McCarthy.

The Democrats have 18 candidates running for six places as presidential convention delegates and seven running for the three places for alternates.

The Republicans are nominating two for delegates and two for alternates, all unopposed.

It is at the top of the state ticket that the Democrats are having a battle this year. Paul Simon, lieutenant governor, and choice of the Democratic organization is opposed by Daniel Walker.

Walker lived up to his name by stumping the state on foot. Governor Richard Ogilvie is a candidate for re-election and he has John Mathis running against him in the primary.

The state's attorneys fight could have an effect on the governorship nomination some politicians feel. Simon pulled the rug out from under the Demo strategist's feet when he came out for a larger and graduated form of income tax while Ogilvie says the state is getting sufficient revenue and is against any tax hike.

The Demos, who had helped pass the state income tax were preparing to forget about that and place all the blame for the tax on Ogilvie.

For U.S. Senator, the Republicans candidate, Senator Charles H. Percy, is unopposed. Congressman Roman C. Pucinski, Chicago, is the Demo. organization choice for the Senate.

He has opposition from W. Dakin Williams.

The Republican choice for lieutenant governor is James D. Nowlan; two are running on the Democratic ticket, Neal E. Eckert and Neil F. Hartigan.

Attorney General William J. Scott is running for re-nomination on the Republican ticket. The Democratic candidate for this office is Thomas G. Lyons.

Edmund J. Kucharski is the Republican candidate for secretary of state. The Democrats are nominating Michael J. Howlett, veteran state official, who has been state treasurer and auditor.

George W. Lindberg is the Republican running for the nomination for state comptroller; the Democratic candidate is Dean Barringer.

Late board stories

Tinley board hears annexation proposal

TINLEY PARK — The village board had a public hearing prior to Monday night's board meeting regarding an annexation request for property at 17824 Oak Park Ave.

The board received a recommendation from the Long Range Planning commission stating that they found the proposal favorable and felt it was a step toward the general upgrading of Oak Park Ave. in the immediate area. The report continued in stating that it was the commission's feeling that the density recommended would encourage the developer, Harry Hargens, and other developers to aid the village in making the community a more attractive place to live.

According to the LRPC, the parcel, which is about 100 by 580 feet, should be: (1) restricted in density to 24 units consisting of four six-flats (the village density calls for a maximum of 30 units an acre).

(2) The petitioner should dedicate 33 feet of the west end of the property for public easement.

(3) The proposed driveway should be fully improved. The buildings located and the property landscaped are proposed in a submitted sketch.

The board instructed the village attorney to draw up an ordinance rezoning the property predicated upon the requests.

Trustee Carl Montecki voted nay on the proposal. He had previously mentioned that he felt he would like to see some higher priced homes in Tinley Park.

Mayor John Dunn read a resolution that the president and the board of trustees of the village "beseech and implore the county board not to allow the Melrose fireworks company, or any firm handling materials reduced by detonation, to rebuild and further to seek state legislation prohibiting explosives of this nature from being manufactured in the state of Illinois."

Trustee Pat Rea voted nay on the resolution and clarified his stand by saying that he was not opposed to well-controlled firms handling such manufacturing.

Dunn stated that the village attorney had checked into the price raise made recently by Atlas Refuse Service and that he found no violations. According to the attorney, the raise was not for profit but to cover an increase of operating costs.

The board further agreed to enter into a state highway proposal allowing for partial cost coverage by the state for signal lights at 171st St. and Harlem Ave. Montecki said that he had been contacted by State Representative Don Moore who told him that he could not secure any additional funds for the village. A majority of the trustees expressed dissatisfaction with the state's proposal. However they felt that they had no choice but to enter into the agreement to provide for the safety of the residents.

Trustee Robert Mason abstained on the vote and said that he would like the amount to be paid by the state, placed somewhere in the state's budget for village assurance. The board's acceptance will include a letter to the state highway department stating that the village's acceptance is only because of the citizens' safety and it should not be misconstrued as setting a precedent.

In further business, the board discussed hospitalization for village employees.

passed on a zoning board of appeals recommendation to rezone property at 17350 Ridgeland Ave. from R-3 to R-5A.

discussed the cancellation of a meeting with the board by the general contractor of the municipal building.

Fieldcrest residents voice bus objections

OAK FOREST — A group of Fieldcrest residents appeared before the Oak Forest village board Monday night to ask their support in opposing the busing program proposed for School District 144.

Susan Hofrichper, spokeswoman for the group stated that residents were not objecting to integration of their schools, but opposed the busing of their children from their own neighborhood.

Mayor Bernard J. Kelly expressed agreement with the parents but said that he could give no firm answer as to what the board could do.

Trustee Dennis O'Connor who is also a Fieldcrest resident moved that the inter-governmental commission look into the issue and provide some recommendations to the board informing them of what steps may be taken. The motion was passed unanimously.

The board also approved Pecora Real-ties' plans for a 17-acre planned unit development at the Northeast corner of 147th and Central Avenue.

Fourteen acres will be developed for multiple unit dwellings, with three acres designated for business. Attorneys for the developer and the city of Oak Forest will meet to discuss the formal agreement.

An expenditure of four to six thousand dollars for an engineering study of Grove Avenue by DeLew Cather and Company was approved by a 4-1 vote, with trustee Leonard Neuzil voting no. The board of local improvements recommended the study be made because of serious drainage problems in the area. Any improvements would be made under an assessment program.

At their next meeting March 27 the board will consider action to oppose the 8.7 per cent increase in real estate taxes proposed for Bremen Township.

New spot

The Knights Inn is New Lenox's newest eating place in the Bill Bolker-built Village Square shopping complex at Francis and Cedar roads. Don Maurer of New Lenox is manager. Knights Inn is one of eight businesses in Village Square. The other are a bakery, a meat market, a food and liquor store, a women's apparel shop, a do-it-yourself laundry, a cleaner and a beauty shop. A new series, featuring stores in the Village Square, will begin next week in the HERALD.

Apartment parking comes under study

ORLAND PARK — Trustee Robert Bibeau made a motion at Monday night's village board meeting that the ordinance be reviewed which concerns the parking lots of apartment buildings. Bibeau said that some apartment complexes do not offer enough parking spaces per unit. He added that some parking lots at the rear of apartment buildings are not lighted all night.

Village president Melvin Doogan said that the owners of apartment buildings should police their parking lots. The village engineer has been instructed to measure the parking lots at several apartment complexes and report his findings in two weeks.

Bibeau, who is temporarily living in the Cameno Real apartments, says that the village should also review its ordinance concerning sound proofing in apartment buildings. He said that he is always hearing his neighbors using spicy language. Bibeau, along with Trustees John Barker and Donald Pekau, will make up a committee to investigate all the questions on apartments. In other action, the board:

approved a building permit for a Gas City filling station at 14360 La-Grange Rd.

approved a permit for a sewer connection for the Burger King being constructed at 159th and Harlem Ave.

approved Ordinance 481 which allows the village to annex land now occupied by a vacated Nike missile site.

approved an application for signs from Ralph Sipes, owner of the Prairie House Garden Center, 15151 S. Harlem

The board passed a resolution commending Joseph Ordenez, a village police officer injured last week in the Melrose fireworks blast. Ordenez was one of the first on the scene and was injured by the second explosion. The resolution commended Ordenez "life-preserving efforts" and "heroic action above and beyond the call of duty."

The Rev. Bob Lothmore, pastor of the Orland Park Church of the Nazarene, asked the village for permission to build a parsonage prior to annexation. It would be located at Fairway and 94th Ave. Lothmore said that the church would agree to pay the costs of sewage and paving.

A citizen complained that more speed signs should be installed in Silver Dells West. He reported excessive speeding.

Study indicates contract okay

TINLEY PARK — A committee consisting of board members Richard Durkin, Kenneth Fulton and Merle Landau have found through investigation that the contractor hired for the demolition and hauling away of two existing frame homes directly west and south west of the village hall substantially completed the contract.

In the report, the committee stated that the following was determined through review of the contractor's records: (1) Approximately 600 yards of debris was removed from the site. (2) Approximately 141 yards of fill (Thornton sand) was identified as having been delivered at this site. (3) The pictures taken as evidence did not reflect a non-compliance of contract. (4) The items identified in the pictures are considered within substantial compliance of the contract when viewed with the material removed and the fill added.

Tinley library loses lumber

TINLEY PARK
March 6 — Lumber was reported missing from the construction site of the new Tinley Park Public Library, located at 171st Street and 71st Avenue.

March 7 — Police officer David Deahl foiled an attempt by two local youths to successfully take a battery from a Southwest Cook County Special Education school bus at 7050 W. 171st St.

Deahl was on routine patrol when he noticed a vehicle driven by Gregory Landis, 17, of 16838 S. New England Ave., parked near the Special Education building. After stopping Landis police noticed a battery with Special Education identity painted on it, under the legs of a passenger identified as Thomas Riggie, 17, 6709 W. 165th Place.

Robert Luchere, manager of the Southwest Cook County Special Education, was contacted and signed charges of theft against Landis and Riggie.

They will appear in Tinley Park Court April 12.

March 8 — Barbara Kamen, 17535 S. Sandalwood, was charged by police for failure to yield after she was involved in an accident at 181st Street and Ridgeland Avenue. The other driver was Dolores Tabor, 3122 Fairview, Chicago Heights. She will appear in Tinley Park Court May 10.

March 4 — A Midlothian youth was charged by police on five counts when they received a call from residents on 171st Street and Forest View Drive of a youth driving a car on their lawn.

Arriving at the scene, Officer Ronald Wagner found the youth sitting in his car that was reportedly smashed and had a broken rear wheel. Officer Wagner noticed a strong odor of alcohol coming from the 1966 Volkswagen and observed another youth running east into the woods. Wagner found two unopened cans of beer in the car, and another can of beer in the area which the other youth was running.

The youth was transported to the police station and reportedly became belligerent and uncooperative, and attempted to flee. The youth attempted to strike Officer Wagner when pursued.

The drivers license in the offenders possession and other identification cards belong to his brother, according to police.

The five charges against the youth were driving while intoxicated, transportation of alcoholic liquor, resisting a peace officer, reckless driving and unlawful use of a license. He will appear in Tinley Park court April 12.

Emergency brings us together

During an emergency, the true nature of the human creature becomes apparent. There is hardly any time for thinking of material profit or loss when lives are at stake. We are forced to show ourselves as being totally selfish or unselfish.

Fortunately, at last week's Melrose fireworks company tragedy, man's better side responded. Examples of heroism and helpfulness from the community are too numerous to all be mentioned here. It was one of those rare occasions when dozens of unrelated organizations from throughout several townships gave their full cooperation, free from any sectional jealousy or egotism.

We especially salute the fire units; they entered the explosion area at a time when it was still not known whether the remaining powder would explode. They were ably coordinated by Art Granat of the Orland Fire District and Edward Mulder of the District 3 Fire Marshal's office.

But the other, less dangerous jobs also produced heroes. Police units quickly sealed off the area and started directing traffic, avoiding what could have become a major traffic tie-up. Community groups have become a major traffic tie-up. Community groups and private citizens donated food to the rescue workers. Teachers at the local schools acted calmly and prevented a situation in which young children might have panicked or been hurt.

We hope that there will never be another occurrence like last week's explosion. But it is reassuring to know that our citizens can react to an emergency situation so quickly and so unselfishly.

Light penalties protect guilty

In a day and age when law and order has been one of the main controversies in our society a recent incident involving a local crime has caused some consternation among local police and citizens.

Recently, police arrested a local man, and charged him with unlawful use of weapons, driving under the influence of alcohol and aggravated assault. Involved in the charge of aggravated assault was the attempted stabbing of a Tinley Park police officer.

At his court appearance recently the offender pleaded guilty to the charges against him. As the result of discussions between the attorneys, and the judge hearing the case, the offender was given six months on a prison farm at Vandalia, and placed on probation for another six months.

In passing the sentence, the judge had commented that based on the offender's past lengthy criminal record that the offender "is in need of some kind of help."

We grant that justice should on occasion be tempered with mercy, but in a case such as this, where the offender unhesitatingly attempted to stab a police officer, we wonder if it might be a case where the public needs help in being protected against such criminally inclined persons, and if stiffer sentences aren't called for.

Governor has new veto powers

The new Illinois Constitution has created tools of government which, if properly implemented, may lead to much needed modernization of state government.

Among them is the new authority of the governor to make recommendations for specific changes in legislation submitted to him by the General Assembly.

Called the "amendatory veto," the new constitutional power allows the governor to make changes in bills and return them to the legislature, where they may be accepted as amended by simple majority votes in both houses — rather than by the three-fifths majority required to enact bills vetoed out-right.

There are obvious advantages to this new device — primarily that it allows the governor to cancel a specific provision of what may otherwise be a good piece of legislation, without rejecting the entire bill.

Members of the legislature and interpreters of the constitution disagree, however, on the extent to which this veto power should be applied. Some contend that it authorizes the governor

Most jobs today are on an eight hour, day to day basis. In many cases workmanship is poor and initiative is nil — unless the worker is exceptionally conscientious, or an owner, it usually follows that he does as little as possible.

Everyone has no doubt read countless assertions pertaining to the negligent worker, employed or volunteer. However, the remarks usually fall on "non-hearing" ears unless the listener happens to be personally involved.

The fire departments in the southwest suburbs are partly volunteer and partly paid employees. These specific village departments seem to be one of the great exceptions in the previously commented on groups that do as little as possible.

They are staunch in their idealism of extinguishing a fire with as little damage to private property as possible.

They often remain, long after necessity demands, to remove debris, cover windows where glass has been broken and to get rid of as much water from the building as is possible. They try to make the cleanup job of the homeowners as easy as they possibly can.

They are diligent in their choice of living an existence beneficial to those in need. They serve, they save and they steadfastly persevere in work that calls for unrelenting determination.

People in communities with well organized, disciplined firemen can rest a little easier knowing that these men are ever ready to answer a call for help.

A call to a fireman for assistance means help is coming — quick.

Volunteer firemen are needed friends

On second thought

Porch climber finds lib ladies

By Glenn Logan

This woman's lib. business — suppose that lib stands for liberation, whatever that is — has been a subject much discussed and written about, but not by yours truly. Jefferson P. Throttlebottom has indicated on occasion that he is ready to unload several hundred or several thousand words on the subject — for or against, but I wouldn't let even Jeff be that foolhardy.

Anyone who smarts off about women is not only looking for trouble but can be certain of finding it, especially if they are in a group. It has been my observation that one may exchange banter with one or two members of the feminine set without hazard, but when dealing with them in numbers, or packs, it can be dangerous.

When confronted with women in numbers the sensible male — unless he is being paid by those women to speak before them — will confine himself to an occasional affirmative nod, a simple yes or no as the circumstances and conversation may dictate, or to look agreeable but say nothing.

That is advice your correspondent should have followed on one occasion but he didn't. That was many years ago. Yours truly was a reporter for a daily then and was sent to a small town on the chance of fattening up a story involving two well known families in the community that were having a disagreement.

It's too long a story to go into here. But it can be explained that the two wives of the two families belonged to the same organization. One was to retire as the head officer and the other was to be installed as her successor. My city editor thought perhaps something interesting might develop. Nothing did. Everything went smoothly, and with apparent harmony.

And for that yours truly came to standing on a chair outside a window in the room where the group was meeting. The chair was on a porch that stretched between two buildings at a second story level. It was a clear, cold winter night. The temperature was around zero. It was all of an hour I was there, freezing, and no overtime.

The thought came that it would be better to step down from the chair while there was still some sensation in my arms and legs than to remain on the chair until freezing stiff and then falling off. Apparently the porch floor, having been out there longer, was colder and when I stepped down it shrieked and made a cracking noise as in zero weather.

It made quite a noise. Enough noise that it penetrated to the room where the women were. It also penetrated an apartment that led onto the porch from the side opposite to the meeting hall.

Two windows opened, one in the hall and one in the apartment. Two of the women recognized me as a reporter. The others took it from there. I was everything low, unclean and despicable with the attached adjectives that the nice women of that time were permitted to use.

Today there are some liberated to the extent where they can give language lessons to dock workers and mule skinner, although one must admit the ranks of mule drivers are exceedingly thin these days.

Your correspondent was young then and like the young did not know how little he knew and how much he had to learn.

Do not interrupt an angry woman when she is stating her views. And when there are several dozen angry women giving voice to their feelings — well, if there is a way one can escape it good policy to take it, but whatever you do keep your mouth shut. As Confucius really did say, when the wind blows the grass must bend.

"Ladies," I said, "there must be some mothers among you. I am freezing and if I am not frozen to death I probably will die of pneumonia. How would you feel if one of your sons was in the same plight? If I die I will be burden on your conscience."

"No you won't," one of them tartly retorted, "you will be in a morgue, and a very good place for you too."

The rest of them echoed this wish and then went on with some strong ideas as to what they would do if they were so unfortunate as to have the likes of me for an offspring. Nothing out of the ordinary, like the thousand cuts or staking me out and building a fire on my stomach.

"Get off this porch," boomed a new voice. It was coming from the window across the way and I could see a man outlined there.

"I can't," I explained turning to him. "There are no steps."

"I don't care about that," he returned, "get off the porch."

"If I jump off here I could be killed."

"I don't care about that," he said calmly. "I don't care if you jump off, fly off or fall off but get off this roof. Mary," he apparently was addressing his wife, "fetch me my pistol."

And fetch it she did. The moonlight brought the window and man into better focus. It looked to me like a big pistol. Maybe it wasn't actually as big as it looked but it wasn't small either.

"Look," I intreated him, "let me come in and go through your apartment and on downstairs. You can light all the lights. I'll keep my hands on top of my head or up in the air, whichever you want, and you keep that pistol pointed at me all the time."

But he was a one idea man.

"Get off the porch. I'll give you just three minutes to get off before I shoot you off."

The women cheered.

"Shoot him now," one of the more blood thirsty sisters shouted.

Then a very, very, sensible, clear thinking woman spoke up.

"I have called the police," she said, "and they will be here immediately."

It was my turn to cheer and a moment or so later I cheered again when I saw a policeman in the alley beneath me. "Where is this man?" he addressed the women that were yelling from the window.

"Right here," I answered.

"Come on down."

"I can't. These women are quite angry. Besides, I'll have to have help to get through that window. Come on up and give me a hand." He did. He herded the women back in the hall and hauled me through the window and we went down the stairs to a good old sidewalk, on a good old street.

He said he would take me to the jail but he didn't have the key. In the meantime we stopped at a drug store and had a gallon of tomato bouillon and some hot chocolate to thaw me out. We were drinking soup and chocolate when a circuit court bailiff whom I knew well, came into the store. He asked why I was there and I told him. I also told him of calling my city editor as soon as we got to the store.

The policeman explained that he would have to call another officer and get the key to the jail. My friends the bailiff advised him to set me free.

"He will be on his way by a court order before you can turn the key when you find it," the bailiff told him. "and nothing will ever come of it, except that you and your colleagues will be under a magnifying glass from now on."

"Forget it and everyone will be happy. I don't think the women want to go into court. Other papers will pick it up then, including the metropolitans and before it ends most everyone will be unhappy," the bailiff said.

So your correspondent went on home and that was the end of it.

There is a moral, of course. Never get on a porch that you can't get off without jumping.

Letters to the Editor

Editor:

On March 8, about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday I was coming home from work when my foot got caught in a sewer on Cicero Avenue near 167th Street heading north. This gentleman was kind enough to stop to help a lady in distress, I was in terrible pain, I couldn't get my foot out of the sewer, when I finally did, I was in terrible pain.

I didn't know if it was broken or what, I still had to walk pretty far to get home. This gentleman stopped, he was going south on Cicero Avenue, but backed up to see if I was hurt, and if he could give me a ride home. I didn't take the ride, but was thankful for his stopping and his kind offer of a ride. I was upset with my pain, and failed to say thank you to this gentleman. But I want to thank him now if he reads the HERALD. Also to let the readers know that some men still believe in helping a woman in distress.

Editor:

Your coverage of the fireworks explosion was excellent. I read with interest the comments of many people working out there. However, I have noticed that whenever there is a disaster in the Orland Park area, there is always one person standing out there ten feet tall and I have never seen any recognition for this person. I know he doesn't expect any, but whenever disaster strikes, Ed Schuetz of Mr. Ed's IGA Foodliner is one of the first people asking, "What can I do?"

He not only provided food in the Village Hall for everyone working, but he also personally went around to all locations making sure the men had eaten. I am told that at one location he even gave his gloves to the man on police duty.

Ed, I for one appreciate your kind efforts. Thank you.

Audio phone tie-ups

Many people had trouble getting a dial tone on their telephone during the recent emergency involving explosions at the Melrose Fireworks Display Co., Orland Park.

According to Illinois Bell officials, people trying to make calls should wait a matter of seconds for a dial tone. (The maximum time for waiting should be 15 seconds.)

The phone company's method for handling calls during emergencies and over loading involves monitoring of calls, and preferential treatment for police, fire, civil defense, hospitals, doctors, nurses, public officials and newspapers, and other phones where contact is of a major importance.

When monitoring is necessary to allow calls to and from sources of major importance, i.e. hospitals, police, the phone company man power is used to determine which calls should receive the preferential treatment.

The telephone equipment and systems are constantly being reviewed and meters used to indicate whether any need exist in a given area for additional equipment.

The officials compared the lag in obtaining a dial tone to the same lag that exist on highways during emergencies.

A study in home rule

Certain local villages are presently contemplating a Home Rule type of government.

Basically, home rule means that the voters of a municipality can, by referendum, adopt a charter and amend the charter for the city. This makes local government much more flexible, in theory. In practice, home rule municipalities usually follow the pattern of one of four types of government: mayor-alderman, city commission, village board, or a manager plan.

There is a form of municipality called a town, organized much like a village, with a town board instead of a village board. This is not to be confused with a township, which is a unit of local government with limited powers. A township can build roads, aid the poor, and sometimes provide water, but does not have the general powers that a city, a village, or a town has.

Sharply contrasted with these cities, villages and towns is the second kind of local government: the special districts or ad hoc districts such as airport authorities, drainage districts, fire protection districts, library districts, park districts, school districts, sanitary and transportation districts. Each district meets just one kind of need.

Learning center opens doors

In a report to the St. Michael School Board Principal Sister Mary Eunice told of a possible change in the physical education program.

Board members heard at their meeting March 7 of what looked to be a "promising" possibility of physical education majors from a nearby college doing their student teaching at St. Michael's. If the proposal goes through the physical education student teachers would work under the supervision of their physical education supervisor.

The principal also reported that the new "Learning Center" will begin March 13. The "Center" is designed to give individual help to about 100 of the 300 children in the non-graded primary division. She said an unanticipated problem has arisen since all the children want to be included in the popular program.

In another matter the board analyzed final results of the survey letters that had been sent to some parochial schools asking if they had trouble obtaining bus service from their local public school districts. Of the 150 school boards contacted 71 replied. Of these thirty eight indicated a wish to join with St. Michael school Board in initiating action to obtain busing. Nine schools indicated they were presently receiving busing from their public school districts.

A committee was formed of members Dan McGrath, Brendan Greene, Robert Boucek and Felix Germino to pursue the matter.

Damage from the fireworks explosion was negligible to the school. A couple of windows were broken and one small crack appeared next to a broken window. Fireman from the Orland Park Fire Protection District inspected the building Monday night and felt it was secure enough to hold school the next day. However, a structural engineer from the Archdiocese will also examine the school.

In other actions a request will be made to the Pastor, Rev. Frank Coyle, to provide a stair railing from the school to the parking lot. Also, an investigation will be made into the feasibility of extending the school library into the courtyard around which the school is built.

Dist. 146 teachers to receive back pay

TINLEY PARK — Among the regular business matters to be handled at the Elementary School District 146 board meeting last Friday evening, was the approval of February bills totaling $149,318.96, and Special Education bills in the amount of $913,327.15.

The latter were February bills of the Southwest Cooperative plus its teachers' salaries, a good portion of which will be reimbursed to the district by the state.

Supt. Walter Fierke informed the board that the district will pay its teachers retroactive pay from Sept. 1, 1971 to Nov. 14, 1972 in accordance with a salary agreement made with the Tinley Park Association of Classroom Teachers signed on Sept. 10, 1971. Employees are informed, however, that a possibility exists of a challenge from the Internal Revenue Service. In that event, the board may request those employees to reimburse the district the amount in question.

Replacement personnel for special education were approved by the board: Patricia Arianis, District 117; Geri Greenberg, 128; George Lubovich, 228; Diane Raisovich, 128. The resignation of Dolly Edgett, 132, was also approved.

Fierke commented on the village board's proposal made on Feb. 26 which informed District 140 board members of the village's plan to help aid school districts by requiring builders and developers to contribute land or cash to districts affected by their housing plans.

Said Fierke, "We will be meeting with an attorney to see where this district stands in regard to this proposal. We are concerned about specific problems that may arise, such as, if an existing building will accommodate the population of an area, then what happens to the contributions that are made? The spending of the contributor's monies should not be at his discretion, but at the discretion of the school board."

Everyone agreed that a good time is had by all each year at family fun night, but there may be some changes in this annual PTA fund raiser. "These festivities, usually held at the Fulton school, may not prove to be feasible in the future," said Richard Rush, of the Building and Grounds Committee.

"There are about 2,600 students plus parents who attend this event and we must consider fire hazards," He suggested that perhaps Family Fun Night be held at two schools or on two separate nights. The matter will be brought to the attention of the PTA.

Under new business, the board discussed a newspaper article on Tinley Park Elementary School Districts which appeared in the Chicago Daily News the weekend of March 4-5. The article expressed admiration of this district's low cost spent per pupil system which even so provides more than adequate educational facilities and standards for Tinley Park students. Certainly, the article was a source of pride for the district and residents.

March 18 is deadline for absentee balloting

BREMEN TOWNSHIP — Persons who will be out-of-town or incapacitated Tuesday, March 21, should send for their absentee ballots immediately. William Clark, Bremen Town Clerk, reminds residents.

The applications for the absentee ballots can be obtained from the Cook County Clerk's office at 118 North Clark St., Chicago 60602 through March 15, by mail or in person through March 18.

If a person believes he might be out of town or in the hospital the day of the election but is not sure, they can still apply for the ballot. By doing so they will be insuring that they are not disenfranchised in the upcoming election.

"There are contests in both the Republican and Democratic primaries so all persons should be sure to vote," Clark commented. "This is one way that we all insure a greater voice in determining our representatives."

Schools deemed safe despite blast damage

By Gertrude Gallagher
ORLAND PARK — Although all buildings of Elementary School District 135 have cracks caused by the concussion of the explosion March 6, the buildings are deemed sound and safe and in need of no major construction repair.

Board member Earl Fuller reported to the full board March 7 the findings resulting from a four-hour tour of the five buildings by school officials and representatives of the insurance company and the United States Office of Education.

The roofs on the buildings were raised and lowered in a couple of areas and broken windows and ceiling tiles will have to be replaced. Workmen are in the process of tightening light fixtures. Shatter-proof laminated exterior window pane is being considered as replacement as it is said to be safer than tempered glass. Laminated will cost $120 per square pane.

Board President Harry Kaper announced the Site Committee had "zeroed in on two prime areas for future sites in terms of location, as well as several general areas." Further discussion of the purchase of the proposed seven to 10 sites for future new school was held in closed meeting.

According to Board member Robert Smith the survey will be in the hands of area residents as soon as possible. The PTA will subsidize the cost of printing contingent on the Band Parents' assisting. The board voted to go ahead.

Considerable discussion was given to a recent meeting of dual district school boards. (A dual district has a grade school and high school district that is separately administered such as Districts 135 and 230.)

Since governmental aid discriminates in favor of a unit district such as Chicago, dual districts are banding together to influence a legislative change, and to support current lawsuits challenging the discriminatory aid. Kaper said of the unit district that exists in Chicago, "Their tax rate is no where near ours."

Although 90 percent of the underground work in the junior high addition has been completed, in essence the architect's report shows that construction is three weeks behind schedule as of now.

Four firms bid on the alarm monitor system. All four firms misread the furnished specifications and the contract will have to be rebid.

The board adopted the revised budget for 1971-72. Minor increases in salaries brought a three percent rise in the budget over that previously set forth. The town treasurer was authorized to invest $200,000 of bonds in short term investments.

Supt. Norbert Jerling is participating in a study group which will consider the feasibility of breaking up the present special education co-op of 26 schools into smaller units.

District 135 will start school in the fall to coincide with high school District 230. A tentative schedule of Sandburg sets the opening of school during the last week of August.

District 135 pays $6,000 a year for garbage removal. It is considering the purchase of two sizes of compactors costing $1,700 and $3,000. Two of the larger units and three of the smaller units would be needed. A determination of cost versus savings will be made prior to purchase.

Melrose not under Orland jurisdiction

By Gertrude Gallagher
ORLAND TOWNSHIP — Melrose Fireworks Display Co. "wasn't in the 1 1/2 mile limit of the Village of Orland Park when it was put there," said Building Commissioner George Brown. Subsequent annexations extending the village boundary prompted him to say, "They're probably within 1 1/2 miles (now)."

The annexation of the property of Andrew Corporation extended the Orland Park limit to 153rd Street and 108th Avenue.

However, Village Attorney Raymond Pieper said that the 1 1/2 mile territorial Village jurisdiction only applies to subdividing. The county would handle all zoning and building of a single construction.

Pieper said the Zoning Ordinance of 1960 of Cook County zoned both sides of 104th Avenue from 159th to 183rd Streets as R-3. This would allow such uses as single family, cemeteries, educational, recreational or religious building, etc.

A business not allowed under the R-3 classification of the 1960 Ordinance, but erected before its passage, might come under provisions for a non-conforming use. Another way of building in an area not zoned for an intended use is to obtain a special use variance to zoning.

The same zoning ordinance provides that such non-conforming uses be gradually phased out and, if removed or destroyed, not be allowed to be rebuilt under the new zoning.

Although Pieper said, "I haven't explored all the possibilities," he added the village could insist that the county enforce its ordinance on non-conforming use.

The village board has gone on record as not wanting the fireworks company rebuilt on its former site.

Terrence Barnicle, attorney for the Orland Park Fire Protection District, said, "From a preliminary investigation of county records it appears that the plant was in a district zoned for residential use."

He added that he had talked with the State's Attorney's office of Cook County which is investigating whether the company should have or did have a state and/or federal license.

chase of two sizes of compactors costing $1,700 and $3,000. Two of the larger units and three of the smaller units would be needed. A determination of cost versus savings will be made prior to purchase.

Park School received 18 gym floor risers at no cost from Sandburg high school.

Board members were each supplied with a form to be filled out in conformance with the recently enacted ethics law by the state. The form seeks information regarding sources of income, conflict of interests, etc., and must be filed by July 1.

The problem of the peeling paint in the Center School will be rectified by the district. The cost will be deducted from the amount due the original contractor.

A substitute policy for school nurses similar to that for teachers was adopted.

The next public board meeting will be held on Wednesday, March 22, at the Park School at 8 p.m.

Blast cause undetermined

ORLAND PARK — State fire officials and Sheriff's police were no further along Monday in resolving some of the questions pertaining to last week's Melrose Firework disaster than they were last week.

Officially only one person, Marty Olsen, of 15600 S. 112th St. Orland Park has been listed as killed in the blast. Two other men, Richard Seraphin, of Calumet City and Robert Trindal of Chicago were still listed as missing.

Sheriff's Police last week, recovered portions of a second body from the wreckage, and were hoping to obtain positive identification from finger prints, but as of late Monday no identification had been made. A third body has not yet been recovered.

State and police officials still had no idea of what caused the blast. A police official said it is doubtful if the cause could ever be determined. "Probably the only three persons that know are the two dead and one missing and presumed dead," the police official said.

No cost of the explosion, which leveled 16 of 18 buildings on the fireworks site and caused damage and tremors over a 12-mile radius, has yet been determined.

Rayson wants laws reviewed on fireworks

TINLEY PARK — State Rep. Leland Rayson (D. 9th) urged a complete review of the explosives law in Illinois as a result of the Monday March 6, fireworks factory blow-up in his Orland Township.

Rayson, a four-term Democrat, said it seems paradoxical that a plant of this size can manufacture fireworks that cannot be sold within the state because of present law.

"What seems obvious is that we either outlaw the complete sale and manufacture of fireworks in the state or we add safer regulations to the existing laws," Rayson added.

Rayson said that since the factory was in unincorporated land near Orland Park it did not come under energetic scrutiny by the county and state governments.

The administrator of the Illinois Department of Mines and Minerals claimed that under present state regulations a company such as Melrose Fireworks Display should have made application for an explosives storage license.

"However," Rayson continued, "the investigation showed that such an application for a public hazard was not made despite the record of a previous explosion which killed the owners of the company."

Rayson found that most of the residents in his district did not know there was a plant engaged in this activity so near residential areas.

Rayson also expressed dismay at the discovery that the nearest fire hydrants was one mile from the plant.

"The momentary fun of fireworks has been overshadowed by the grisly history of maimed, blinded and dead humans. I hope our society will become more responsible and it will find out that it can exist in a world without explosions and fireballs," Rayson added.

Post office offering mini collection

TINLEY PARK — A concentrated program to provide the residents of Tinley Park with attractive 1971 commemorative stamp folders began March 13, 1972. Postmaster Roman J. Mazurowski said.

Beginning with the start of business Monday, the Mini-Albums, containing U.S. commemorative stamps issued in 1971, will go on sale at the post office.

"This folder is an easy way for a youngster or anyone to start a stamp collection," Postmaster Mazurowski said. The folders 10" x 10" in size, will contain a description of each stamp together with the packet of 24 attractive commemorative stamps issued during the year and stamp hinges which can be used to affix the stamps to the folder. The hinges are a glassine strip which collectors use for mounting stamps without harming the folder nor the stamps.

He urges residents desiring these folders to obtain them as soon as possible as the supply is limited.

Norman Hardinger, 17315 68th ct., Tinley Park, became a customer of the Bremen Bank and Trust in 1912, when the bank was first founded. Last week, Ralph C. Dahms, president of the bank, presented Hardinger with a plant for being its longest customer.

Dance will benefit victim of paralysis

By Gertrude Gallagher

You could say the Dance will be in her honor.

But the honored guest won't be there. Hopefully, 2500 well wishers will be there at her benefit dance at 8 P.M. on March 24 at the Orland Chateau.

Pamela Ross will be home, perhaps receiving a therapy treatment from a stepfather who is determined to make her well again.

Sixteen year old Pamela is paralyzed from the waist down as a result of a broken neck incurred in an auto collision last July 9.

"She never has days when she complains," says her mother Mrs. Timothy Cash, 9107 Fairway Drive. "If she had been depressed I think I would have gone to pieces."

Mrs. Cash added that although she has not as yet brought it to the attention of the doctor, her hopes have been raised recently. She said Pamela seems to be getting a little movement in her legs. "It looks like she's doing something different."

Mrs. Cash gives Pam therapy each morning and her husband gives it in the evening after work. The therapy involves exercising the joints of the hip, knee, ankle and toes. A neighbor, Mrs. Marge Lehw, says of Tim Cash and his giving the treatments, "He's an Irishman who doesn't intend to give up."

Depending upon the degree of improvement Pam, who turned 16 in January and who skipped a grade in grade school, may return to Sandburg in September as a junior. Otherwise, her mother said that she would attend Oak Forest High School which has facilities for the handicapped.

Dance arrangements are being handled by Mrs. Lehw, 9048 Fairway. Tickets are $2 per person and can be obtained either at the door or by calling 349-2684.

Expenses have been heavy for the Cashes. Mrs. Lehw said, "If we could get all the tickets sold that would be $5000." She added the merchants of Orland have been very generous with donations. The band has donated its services.

Assisting Mrs. Lehw are her daughter, Mrs. Marge Hardner and friends of the Cash family, Lori Davis and Barbara Tinsman, all of Orland Park.

Mrs. Cash who has lived in Orland for 9 years says the Lehw family has been wonderful. "They're the kind of people who would help anyone," she added.

Rafacz named in wage dispute

ORLAND PARK — Rafacz Landscaping & Sod Farms, Inc., 151st Street and 94th Avenue, is charged with numerous violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act in a complaint filed in Federal District Court, Chicago, by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The complaint alleges that the landscape and construction firm has repeatedly failed to pay employees overtime compensation at the rate of time-and-one-half the employee's regular wage rate for hours worked in excess of 40 per week, failed to pay one employee the $1.60 per hour minimum wage, and failed to keep adequate records of employee wages and hours.

The Labor Department seeks a permanent injunction banning repetition of the alleged unlawful practices and a Court order requiring the firm to pay any overtime and minimum wages found due to the employees.

The complaint was filed following investigation by the Department's Wage and Hour Division, Chicago-South Area Office, 2222 W. 95th St., Chicago, under the supervision of Daniel P. New, Area Director.

High school musicians to present concert

MIDLOTHIAN — Select band, chorus and orchestra students from seven Southwest Suburban Conference schools will be heard in a festival concert, Friday, March 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the Bremen High School gym located at 152nd Street and Crawford Avenue, Midlothian.

The honor students have been chosen from Bremen, Carl Sandburg, Evergreen Park, Homewood-Flossmoor, Lincoln-Way, Oak Lawn, Reavis, and Rich East High School.

Professional conductors are selected to lead the performers in music ordinarily too difficult for the group from any one school, and to involve students in the discipline necessary to sing or play in a professional music organization.

The 320-voice chorus will be directed by composer-arranger Lena McLin of the Kenwood High School in Chicago. The 125-member band will be directed by Christopher Izzo, director of bands, Western Illinois University. The festival orchestra of 100 players will have Thomas Wisniewski for his second year as festival orchestra conductor. Wisniewski is associate professor of music, University of Illinois, Urbana.

Tickets for the event are available at each of the eight high schools and at the door. Student donation is 75 cents and adults $1.25.

After advance preparation at their home schools, students will be in rehearsal sessions Thursday evening and on Friday.

day. The 7:30 p.m. concert is preceded by a dinner and recreational period where participants can meet students from the eight Southwest Suburban schools.

The co-chairmen for the music festival are Don S. Hollingsworth, Instrumental music, and Otis L. Branch, choral music, instructors at Bremen High School.

Orland site of 'Cone Shop'

The "Cone Shop" of Frankfort is contemplating opening a second ice cream specialty shop. If negotiations are successful the shop will open at 143rd Street and Ravinia in the buildings of the Church of the Nazarene in Orland Park.

The owners of the "Cone Shop" are interested in the purchase of the Nazarene property only if it can be rezoned to commercial. A Zoning Board Hearing will probably be held April 3.

Incorrect information had been furnished the Orland Park Village Board that the potential buyer was the "Plush Horse" a specialty ice cream shop located in Palos Park. One of the owners of the "Cone Shop", Richard Freeman, had formerly made the ice cream for the "Plush Horse." In partnership with Martin Kaffel, Freeman now has no connection with the "Plush Horse."

Bank marks 60th year

TINLEY PARK — The annual stockholder's meeting of Bremen Bank & Trust was held recently at Jardine's Restaurant.

A special 60th anniversary dinner preceded the meeting and Mrs. Christina Stelter, the oldest stockholder present was presented with an orchid corsage.

The annual report showed that the bank experienced another successful year of operation and that the assets increased from $24,912,821.89 to $31,903,816.80 an increase of 28 per cent.

The following directors were re-elected: Edward Henke, (Chairman) Wallace Herdlein, Robert Bridge, Howard A. Mager, Ralph C. Dahms, Donald G. Pyles, Emory J. Fulton, Paul R. Schreiber and Alvin Henke.

The bank was organized in 1912 under the name of Bremen State Bank and moved to its present location in 1966.

Frankfort trustees study budget needs

FRANKFORT — Village trustees are busy now calculating the needs of their departments preparatory to drafting the appropriation ordinance for the coming fiscal year. One of the major tasks will be that of Trustee Wilbert Klier, chairman of the sewer and water department. Plans are in the making for expansion of the water system that is expected to include another well and elevated tank. Klier will be working with the village engineers on this.

Klier is to attend an instructional meeting dealing with water and sewer matters at Springfield April 17-19. He will be accompanied by Donald Stephen, superintendent of maintenance, and another employee, Clarence Heisner.

Robert E. Hamilton, village engineer, has been asked to attend the village board meeting next Monday to discuss fees for water service and hook-ups involving industries.

Approval was given the request of N-Gas Co. to install approximately 2,100 feet of two-inch main on Colorado Avenue.

A request by the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern Railway to dissolve the annexation of Laraway Road between Center and Wolf Roads was denied.

Village Attorney August J. Santoro reported to the board that he had given the E. J. & E. and the Penn-Central a negative answer when they asked that the village rescind that part of its strip annexation program taking in the roads between Harlem and Ridgeland avenues. The village stip annexed Ridgeland between U.S. 30 and Sauk Trail last year.

Matteson is objecting to Frankfort annexing any of the roads in Cook County. The attorneys for the two villages have been in communication with each other but no date has yet been set on which representatives of the two communities will sit down and endeavor to reach an amicable agreement.

Santoro also reported that attorneys for the people who want to put in a trailer court on U.S. 45 south of Frankfort has filed objections to the village filing a motion to intervene in the suit.

The village is asking to be made a defendant because its proposed trailer court does not conform with its master plan. The proposed court lies within a mile and a half radius of the village.

Hearing on the motion is set for April 6 in the Will County Circuit Court.

On the day following, April 7, the court will hear arguments on the motion of Frankfort to dismiss the suit filed some weeks ago by Albert H. Krusemark Sr. against the zoning variation granted the B & M Lumber Co. to permit it to stack or store lumber in the open. Also named in the suit are Rittenhouse & Embree.

A Chicago lumber firm that has purchased B & M, Rittenhouse and Embree also have filed a motion to dismiss and the hearing date April 17, but what will be done with that motion will depend upon what decision is given on the village's motion on April 7, it was said.

Krusemark has property adjacent to the lumber yard. The zoning board voted down a request by B & M for a variation and the village board voted to overrule the zoning board. Krusemark claims the action of the zoning board of appeals in a variation matter is final.

Board delays action on zoning appeals

NEW LENOX — Action was withheld on two matters before the New Lenox Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals at its regular session last week.

One was on the petition for rezoning of a 2.65-acre tract off North Cedar Road, about 200 feet north of Wood Street. The other dealt with some details in the planned unit development of Leavitt & Sons, southwest of the Lincoln-Way Shopping Center.

The rezoning case was tabled until the owners came up with a plat of the property. In the planned unit case the commission agreed to take it up again this week. There were several things under consideration but most of the emphasis was on the width of Haven Avenue at the south end of the 91-acre parcel.

According to John E. Francis, a member of the commission, most of Haven Avenue lies within the boundaries of the Leavitt development. The architect for the developer, Kenneth Campbell, told the commission that under the annexation agreement made with the village only a 40-foot roadway was required.

The commission wants an 80-foot roadway. Francis pointed out that the 40-foot road would not handle the increased traffic that could be expected when the almost 900 dwelling units are constructed.

Commission members are said to be asking for copies of the annexation agreement reached between the village and the developer. It is said that the reason the developer doesn't want to improve an 80-foot roadway is that it would reduce some of his lot sizes plus the fact that building streets is an expensive thing.

The attorney for the Leavitt organiza-

Stanley Ekedahl, who teaches advanced first aid training for the Will County Chapter of the American Red Cross, has been honored by the New Lenox Volunteer Fire Department, of which he is a member. At a meeting of the department recently Ekedahl was presented with a pin to mark his 30th year of service to the department and to the community...

tion, Robert Brandwein, told the commission that if an 80-foot roadway is put in half of it should be built by the property owners on the south side of such street. Haven Avenue is said to center on a section line but according to some of the commission most of the present road is north of the line.

Engineers for the developer were to take both lines so the plan commission gets a picture of the situation before the special meeting this week.

The agreement with the village, it was said, will permit 140 single family dwellings on 30 acres. The remainder of the tract will accommodate various types of multi-family dwellings.

On the zoning petition involving the tract on North Cedar the petitioners are the Standard Bank and Trust Co., Chicago, and two residents of that city. They were represented by Attorney Donald Wise, Joliet, who presented the board with sketches and drawings indicating his clients wants to re-zone from R-2 to R-4.

Wise claims there is no necessity for him to file a plat with the zoning board because his clients just want a zoning change and there is nothing in the village ordinances requiring a plat for that purpose. The zoning board, however, voted unanimously to table the matter until a plat was forthcoming. Some of the members point out that the developer's plans to put 86 dwelling units on 2.65 acres would create too high a density.

The matter first came before the zoning board in April, 1971, and was tabled then because the developers reportedly declined to present a detailed plan.

Contested rates are at fault

Tax delay costly to all

NEW LENOX — Delay in payment of taxes this year is expected to cause financial pain to a number of taxing bodies and one of those that will suffer is Lincoln-Way High School.

Lincoln-Way has been running in the black even in years where taxes have not been available until well in July but this year no one knows yet just when the tax bills will be out.

This is a quadrennial year, so-called because the law required that real estate be given a new appraisal every four years and any changes in valuations noted. Owen Pomeroy, supervisor of assessments for Will County, a comparatively new office as far as this county is concerned, does not have all the figures for all the townships

Co-op unit to be built

NEW LENOX — A new building is to be erected on the Lincoln-Way High School grounds as a part of the Lincoln-Way Area Cooperative for Special Education.

It is to serve the mentally handicapped between the ages of 3 and 21, according to Martin Mackay, director of the special education program.

It will be entirely separate from the high school plant and is to be located at the east end, north of the Vocational Agriculture department.

It is to be designed to accommodate 100 pupils but at the present time the number of such youngsters in the district is reported at 26.

The building is to be financed by a two cent tax authorized by state law, it was explained, plus a state grant based on the number of teachers at the rate of $1,000 a teacher per year.

Director Mackay estimated the two cent tax, which is being levied on property in entire Lincoln-Way High School District (the Lincoln-Way Cooperative Area is made up of the high school district plus the Aebury Hills, Ann Rutledge, Frankfort, Mokena, New Lenox and Manhattan grade school districts) will yield approximately $35,000 a year and the state grant will come to about $15,000 a year, making the total approximately $50,000.

The cost of the building is limited to $155,000. The district already has some $40,000 earmarked for the project. It will pick up another $50,000 this year and by the time it is ready to open in September, 1973 Mackay expects the last of the money will be available to complete payments to the contractors.

Because the building is to be on the high school site the Lincoln-Way board of education will have jurisdiction over its design.

At its meeting last Thursday night the board consulted with the two architects whose services are being considered. One is William Scheidmantel and the other is his associate, Fred Tritler, of Park Ridge. They have done work for local school boards and were employed by Childs and Smith which drew the plans for the original Lincoln-Way High School.

They recommend a one-story square type building as the most economical.

Scheidmantel told the board he would prepare a booklet that would contain suggestions on designs for specific needs from the people involved in the special education program. Such suggestions, he said, would be put into drawings and could be included in design plan if the board decided upon them.

Each of the school districts in the Lincoln-Way District Special Education program provides a room for the purpose.

Sportsmen receive award

NEW LENOX — The New Lenox Sportsmen's Club, which for years has been active in conservation work, has received a National Wildlife Federation award for its 1971 endeavors.

The presentation was made last weekend at the Federation's 36th annual meeting held March 10-12 in Mexico City. The award was received by Richard Keen, Romeoville, a member of the New Lenox Sportsmen's Club and the Illinois representative of the Wildlife Federation. He is a voting delegate to the convention in Mexico.

This is the first national award won by the New Lenox club according to Frank Goetschel, treasurer and former president of the organization. He added that it is also the first such award to be presented to an Illinois affiliate of the Wildlife Federation in several years. Announcement of the award to the New Lenox Sportsmen's Club was made by the Federation president, Dr. James H. Shaeffer.

"Your collective efforts have served to emphasize the importance of an alert, active and aggressive local conservation club," Dr. Shaeffer said in making the presentation.

According to Goetschel the award was made for the youth education program sponsored by the New Lenox club through conservation workshops at various colleges. The club also organized a program to clean up Hickory Creek.

A concerted effort is to be made to clear the creek of all debris and trash between Wolf Road and the dam in Pilcher Park at Joliet.

Chamber supports Muehler imports

MOKENA — The Mokena Chamber of Commerce is sending letters to the Village Board, the Zoning Board of Appeals and the Plan Commission in support of Mark Muehler plan to establish an import business at 11201 Front St.

Muehler appeared before the Chamber at its recent meeting and said he wants to open a business at the rear of the Front Street address and showed samples of some of the things he would sell. The items included handcrafted leather and cloth bags from Morocco, hand made woodenware from the Orient, glassware and other things usually found only in specialty shops in cities.

Muehler volunteered to make a count of the waste containers in the business area and ascertain the cost to a businessman to have a sign painted on them. His action followed a recommendation by Will Tuttle that the Chamber update the advertising matter. Eugene Dilworth, vocational arts instructor at Willowcrest School, spoke briefly to the Chamber about Career Day for 8th grade pupils at the school April 28.

Dilworth will contact Mokena businessmen to ascertain if they wish to participate in the programs. Such businesses would be listed in three sections so pupils can choose four they wish to visit between 9 a.m. and noon. There will be a total of 12 business firms visited. Luncheon will be served at noon at Carpenter Street School for the students and businessmen. Gene Malone, of the Will County Farm Bureau will be the speaker. The Willowcrest band and choir, and the St. John's Church bellringers will provide entertainment.

We have just learned, 10 months late, that Inge Vogelmann, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Vogelmann of Aberdeen Road was the first place winner of the American Association of German Teachers National German Contest. The contest was held at the University of Illinois Circle Campus. The contest is open only to "B" average or better students, third or fourth semester of studies in German and by invitation. The condominium complex in Prestwick will shortly gain a new member. D'Evereux. Scheduled to open within the next week, this will be the third jewel in a crown that will have 10 when completed. The first building to open was "Westover," designed after the Westover Home of William Byrd, who built his mansion near Williamsburg, Va. There are presently only three units of 18 remaining for sale in this building.

The second building to open was "Vieux Carre." Architect William Coffin designed this building as a montage of famous works of architecture from the French Quarter of New Orleans. According to Pat Merriam, only one unit remains for sale out of 18.

Now, "D'Evereux." The original building stands in Natchez, Miss. and is considered a rare example of pure Greek Revival. The original home has a rich history among which was what is considered the most brilliant ball in Natchez history of William Clay. Built in 1836, the D'Evereux is generally conceded to be the finest example of the classical architecture for which Natchez is famous.

Sunstrom favors court reform

RICH TOWNSHIP — Arthur J. Sunstrom, Jr., Republican candidate for Illinois Senator from the Ninth district, has joined those individuals and groups criticizing the legislature for flouting the 1970 constitution in implementing court reform.

The Homewood candidate in the March 21 primary noted he welcomes the new committee on courts and justice that has formed to lead another fight for the merit system of selecting judges in Illinois.

Sunstrom noted that when the new constitution was approved in 1970, a majority of Cook County voters backed the option for merit selection despite the organized opposition of Chicago's Democratic machine.

"In populous Cook County the voters mistrust the slating process because they rightly feel they have no voice in it," Sunstrom said.

Sunstrom pointed out that the differences in merit selection have been taken into consideration by the citizens committee, a confederation of leading citizens organizations and prominent leaders in all walks of life.

"Cook County and downstate would be given their choice between a revised merit plan and a continuation of the elective system," Sunstrom noted.

"Cook County could adopt one system and downstate Illinois another or both could accept the same," Sunstrom said.

FBI agent speaker at blue, gold dinner

TINLEY PARK Kenneth Cairns, an FBI Agent, was the guest speaker at the Cub Scout Pack 353 Blue and Gold dinner held Feb. 27.

The dinner also included a skit by Scott Kasas and Robert Nadolski. Cub Scout Den 7 took the prize for the best centerpiece along with Webelos Den 3.

The scouts were also entertained by juggler Paul Bachman, who held the boys' attention with the fire juggling, and unicycle riding.

The Rev. Paul H. Lechner was awarded a plaque in behalf of the Zion Lutheran Church for sponsoring the Pack.

During the affair Rich Larson was installed as a new Cub Scout, Tom Doyle

Under the revised merit plan, Sunstrom pointed out, judges would be selected by a commission half of whose members would be appointed by the governor and the other half by a committee of judges and lawyers.

"There are defects in such a system but it is at least a beginning toward the ultimate solution," the candidate remarked.

"Concerned public debate on the proposition could help eliminate some of the flaws and produce a plan that would be widely acceptable," he said.

as a Webelos and Steven Zylventri as a Boy Scout.

Awards and badges were also distributed at the dinner. Recipients included Jim Anderson, Steven Nadolski, Tim O'Brien, Raymond Pohl, George Doyle, Tom Doyle, Mike Valenti, Roger Tannus, Larry LaBlanc, Steve Romanagie, Scott Shack, George Baratta, Charles Gray, Robert Smedly, James Theimeyer, Stanley Harris, Dan Fialco, Richard Scott, Dennis Miller, George Martin, Thomas Mozart, Don Arbonott, Gary Candell and Billy Patch.

Awards also went to the den mothers, den leaders and parents, who have worked with the scouts. Special thanks was given to Jim Kelly and Barbara Nadolski.

Missionaries to speak

These missionaries represent some 2500 foreign missionaries and 2100 home missionaries now supported by the Southern Baptist Convention. Christianity Today reports that in the last 13 years, four "mainline" denominations have cut their foreign missionary strength, but Southern Baptist have almost doubled their number.

The Rev. Don Allen said that services would begin at 7:30 p.m. for Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Time for the Sunday services will be 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m.

of Vocational Rehabilitation for several years.

Rev. Armitage has degrees from Cornell University, University of Missouri and Southern Baptist Seminary.

Sunday - Robert N. Bellinger serves as business manager at Ricks Institute, Baptist Primary and secondary school near Monrovia, Liberia. A layman, Bellinger was an accountant for a manufacturing firm in Los Angeles, California for nearly seven years before his missionary appointment in 1963. He was graduated from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary with a master of religious education degree.

Mrs. Carter is a graduate of East Tennessee State College, and later received the master of arts degree from Columbia Bible College.

Rev. Allen stated that the 89 churches and missions associated with the Metre-Chicago Baptist Association has such a program about every five years. The public is urged to attend. A Nursery service will be opened.

McGovern backers meet

BREMEN TOWNSHIP An air of joviality and good feelings pervaded the Crestwood Palace on February 27 when Senator George McGovern's supporters and delegate candidates met for a fund raiser there.

The five 4th Congressional District delegate candidates and the two alternates who are running for election to the National Democratic Convention committed to U.S. Senator George McGovern, were there to talk about their choice for the presidency.

Among the 250 people who attended were Anthony Scariano, a State Senator and Leland Rayson, a state Representative. Both are from the 4th Congressional District. Both have endorsed the McGovern slate.

Senator McGovern, who was campaigning in New Hampshire, telephoned his supporters and told them that he was preparing to challenge the Muskie slates in Illinois which do not comply with the McGovern Commission Guidelines on delegate selection. The 4th district is one in which the Muskie slate does not comply with the guidelines.

A Thought To Remember BY BOB HIRSCH

Peace of mind is sought by many people in many places. They find it elusively elusive and wonder why. Troubled hearts abound. If an elementary fact was accepted, they would find peace of mind is attainable. And maintainable.

Peace of mind can only be found in ourselves. Not elsewhere. In our troubled minds we seek help from psychiatrists, psychologists, tranquilizers and the like. They all have their place. But none of them can take the place of Christian ministry and Christian activism. A rebirth of faith is needed to bring about a quietness of spirit and a freedom from fear. Only then can emotional conflicts be overcome.

Peace of mind can be likened to a harvest. To reap the harvest we must plant seeds of love, compassion and understanding. As the seeds grow, the weeds of selfishness, greed, jealousy and prejudice must be plowed under. Actually, to reap the harvest of a peace of mind, we give up nothing of value. We gain a lot.

Teacher urges political activism

ORLAND PARK — "If you don't get active politically, you are going to end up with a government that is unresponsive to the needs of the people," Ron Rodgers, a teacher at District 218 advised the students at Carl Sandburg High School, when he addressed the social science and government classes Feb. 29.

Rodgers teaches Asian and American history at Richards High School. He also is running for alternate delegate from the Fourth Congressional District to the Democratic presidential convention to be held in Miami.

According to his speech before the Sandburg students, Rodgers feels that the war in Vietnam is definitely not being wound down, but is merely a publicity ploy prior to the elections. As an example of this stand, he used the statement recently issued that the tonnage of bombs being dropped has been reduced by 22 percent. Rodgers states however, that the reduction in tonnage does not reflect a reduction in the quantity of bombs being dropped, but rather that the type of bomb currently being dropped weighs less than the old cast iron bombs. "The statement of reduction in tonnage does not mean that we have decreased bombing," states Rodgers, "but merely that we are currently using a lighter more efficient type bomb."

He developed his views on Vietnamization last December when he traveled to Paris to take part in the peace talks with the North Vietnamese. He calls "Vietnamization" a "racist policy" designed to keep the war going by having Asians kill Asians.

"We pay the costs, they do the dying," he said. The trip to Paris was taken with a church group seeking an end to the hostilities for the release of our prisoners of war.

He also stated that he feels that most people become apathetic because they just don't want to hear anymore, just as they didn't want to hear what Christ had to say. "The democratic system is good," he said, "but it is just not being used correctly."

He urged the students to get out and vote, and emphasized that the primary was very important because that is when the candidates who run in November are selected.

Rodgers stated that if he wins the alternate delegate spot on the ballot, he will vote and work for an anti-war plank, and for reform on how delegates are selected.

His campaign is underwritten by Muskies, and he has committed his first vote to Muskies.

Speaking on the 18 year old vote, he agreed with the comment of one of the students that although they are now taking a more active role, they are still immature. He responded that students vote idealistically rather than pragmatically, but that is good. "Because you're new at it, you'll make mistakes, we all do. But, if you don't get politically active, you are going to end with a government that is unresponsive to the needs of the people."

JEANNE PANFIL

'Every extra bit helps'

TINLEY PARK — Like most people, Jeanne Panfil had never won anything in her life. Not until last month when she was notified that she had won $5,000 in the National Food Stores "Racing Sweepstakes."

Mrs. Panfil, who lives at 16321 S. 66th St., Tinley Park, said that when she heard the news, "I almost hit the floor. They had to call me back a second time before I believed them. And even then I kept asking myself, 'Did I really win?'" It was only after they phoned her husband at his office that I was absolutely sure."

Does Jeanne Panfil have any special plans for her prize money?

"No, it's all in the bank. We have nine children and every extra bit of money helps." Mrs. Panfil has three sons at college, two daughters and one son at Tinley Park High School and three sons in grade school.

Mrs. Panfil's husband, John, is a staff superintendent for the Santa Fe Railroad.

IVI honors Rayson

TINLEY PARK — State Rep. Leland Rayson, Democrat 9th District, was recently awarded a "Best Legislator Plaque" by the Independent Voters of Illinois. This makes the fourth time he has been so honored. He received the same award in 1966, 1968, 1970 and now in 1972.

Rep. Rayson was judged on his voting record in the 77th General Assembly on matters such as ethics in government, electoral reform, health and welfare, aid to education and transportation.

Rep. Rayson commented, "Regarding my voting record, I have always tried to face facts as they are and not as we pretend them to be. I consider it a privilege to represent the voters of the Ninth District and am indeed honored to have a non-partisan organization such as IVI endorse my voting record."

Rayson is an attorney and the father of seven children. He has sponsored bills for abortion law reform, consumer protection, credit reform, no-fault divorce, abolition of capital punishment, election law reform and environmental protection. He is currently in the March 21 primary election for the Democratic nomination as state rep. from the 9th district includes: Tinley Park, Oak Forest, Markham, Country Club Hills, Crestwood, Posen, Robbins, Harvey, Hazelcrest, Park Forest, Flossmoor, Homewood and Phoenix.

GINGERWOOD — The first game of Gingerwood's Friday night twin bill hockey games saw the Bruins matched against the Rangers. Bruin Bill McGregor was the first to score when he made a 15-foot slap shot with just four minutes gone in the first period.

Then two and one-half minutes later Bruin Mike Babecki scored with a 14-foot wrist shot around a crowded net. With only 30 seconds left in the period Babecki scored again with a six foot jammer that the Ranger goalie had no chance of stopping.

In the first one and one-half minutes of the second period Mike Babecki scored his hat trick when he went flying around behind the net and fired a short one in. Three minutes into the period the Rangers got on the board when Doug Kurecki made an 18-foot slap shot that went by the Bruin goalie. Six minutes into the period Bruin Jeff Lyons took a pass and jammed in a five footer. Then with two minutes left in the period Babecki came through with his fourth goal of the night when he also took a pass and jammed home a four foot shot. In the third period both defenses tightened up and neither team was able to score again, as the Bruins won 6-1.

The second game between the Canadians and the Blackhawks was almost unbelievable with some of the shots that were made. A minute into the first period Canadian John Morgan made a 30-foot bouncing, rolling, curving shot that got by the Blackhawk goalie for a score. The Canadians went out in front 2-0 when Kevin Joyce jammed home a two foot rebound. A minute later Blackhawk Bill McKinley hit one that went on edge and rolled 10 foot, and bounced in for a tally. Two minutes later Blackhawk Scott Fencil scored with a shot from a face-off from the left side of the net.

Thirty seconds later McKinley put the Hawks in the lead with a 12 footer. The defenses tightened up in the second period and five minutes had elapsed before Canadian John Morgan made a 15-footer from a difficult angle.

With 30 seconds left in the period Morgan got his hat trick when he jammed home a two foot rebound. Two minutes into the third period Morgan scored again with an assist from Canadian Kevin Burns. Then, two minutes later scored again with a six foot rebound.

Canadian Jim Ford slammed an 8 footer that hit the net post and went in for a

Girls help run sporting events

ORLAND PARK — With women's liberation and all the girls seem to be getting into the act in everything. At Carl Sandburg high school it's no exception. The baseball team has batgirls, the swim team has timers, the basketball team has stat girls, the cross-country team has timers and now the track team has girl timers, cheerers and some spectators.

Cindy McKown, a senior, is the captain of the girls who must be at track every meet, dressed in their dark blue outfits with gold trim to time each boy during his race.

Besides Cindy, Bobbie Peterson, Ann Demetral, Ronnie MacNeal, Sue Kiner, Nancy Kubis, Cathy Croke, Diane Peters, Jessane Garrison, and Debbie Larcher. These girls will not only time but do all markings and other chores.

Archery-golf tourney planned at Willow Run

MOKENA — An "archery-golf" tournament, sponsored by the Tox-oph-i-lites Archery Club (toxophilites is Greek that is translated as lovers of archery) of Joliet is to be staged this Sunday at Willow Run Golf Club in Marley.

Charles Ladis, who with his brother Don, operates Chalk 'N Cue, a billiards, pool and archery business in Joliet, is a member of the Tox-oph-i-lites Club. He said it is expected that at least 100, and double that number if the weather is good, will participate in the tourney.

These participants are seasoned archers and it is expected there will be some good scores. Instead of using a ball and a variety of golf clubs the archers use arrows instead of balls. A target will be set on each green. Instead of holing out by putting a ball into a cup the archers must put an arrow in the bullseye.

Play is to begin between 6:30 and 7 a.m. Willow Run is operated by Pat and Neal Skvorc. The targets will be furnished by Millard Lerch, head of the L & M Cork Products, Mokena, which manufactures them for use in archery lanes and outdoor shoots.

The Skvorcs have just returned from Naples, Fla., to re-open Willow Run.

This will be the first archery-golf tournament to be held in the area for at least 20 years. Spectators are invited.

OYA competes on three cage levels

ORLAND PARK — Orland Park's OYA all-stars competed in the Chicago Heights Tourney last Saturday. There were three teams; nine year-olds, 11 year-olds, and 13 year-olds all playing in 8-16 team tournaments.

The 11 year-olds were the only team that won beating Steger, 55-44. The nine year-olds fell to a good team as did the 13 year-olds, losing to Homewood 49-36. The 11 year-old all-stars will now play Tuesday for the right to the finals.

Co-op will sponsor 2nd Olympic program

TINLEY PARK — Southwest Cook County Cooperative Association for Special Education will again sponsor an Olympic Program for Exceptional Children.

The 1971 event, a first in the cooperative and in the state, attracted over 300 young athletes. Unlike the National Olympics, retarded youngsters as well as the physically handicapped, blind and partially sighted, maladjusted and the deaf and hard of hearing, will have an opportunity to compete for gold, silver and bronze medals.

At an organizational meeting recently, three co-chairmen for the 1972 Olympics were announced by Benjamin L. Braun, director of the cooperative. They are Marty Fox, EMH teacher, Tinley Park High School, District 228; Sharon Morse, teacher of the physically handicapped.

Spaulding School District 143; and Steve Harada, physical therapist for the association. Tinley Park High School, 6111 W. 175th Street, will be the site for the Olympics.

There will be track and field events as well as a complete swimming program. A series of events especially tailored for the physically handicapped is being planned.

"The goal of this program is to provide an opportunity to demonstrate the benefits of physical fitness for exceptional children and young adults," says Braun. "Also, gaining confidence through sports helps build a positive self-image."

Oakview repeats as mat champs

NEW LENOX — Oakview Junior High successfully defended its junior high wrestling crown last weekend at Maine North High School Des Plaines.

Oakview had to share this years title with Arbor Park, as both teams scored 24 points. Some 60 schools from throughout the state qualified at least one boy for the state finals.

Oakview had 11 boys qualify for the finals, and two of them won titles. John Jackson was the best at 97-pounds and Chip Connor was 105-pound champ.

Jackson opened with an easy 19-0 win and then was a 4-0 winner in the second round. He won the third round 6-2, and beat a West Chicago wrestler 2-0 for the title.

Connor took the first match on a forfeit, and took his second outing 9-4. His third match was a 6-0 decision, and the title bout was a 1-0 thriller.

The Oakview team is coached by Terry Weber.

This year tournament was one of the closest in history with five points separating the first eight teams. Huntley of DeKalb was second with 23 points followed by Apollo and Northfield, tied for third with 21 points each.

Craig Huttendorf, wrestling at 83-pounds finished third in his weight class, but it was his four team points that enabled Oakview to earn a share of the title.

Huttendorf won his final match on a pin. He also won another match on a pin, and posted a 7-5 decision, before losing 4-2.

Mark Jackson, wrestling at 60-pounds was a first round winner over the top seeded matman from Roselle.

Dave Jeffery lost his first round bout 2-0, and Mark Cricione turned in a 28-second pin in the first round, before losing a 2-0 decision.

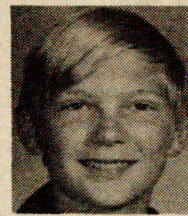

Jim Steen was a first round winner, but lost his second round bout 2-0. Bill Tyner lost his first outing 8-4.

Mike Mager, won his first bout 7-0, and then lost 4-2 in 10 in the final 10 seconds of an overtime period.

Both Dan Manns and Joe Forrest lost first round decisions. Oakview will see action this weekend when Lincoln-Way High School holds its annual tournament. Featured in the tournament will be five of this years 16 individual state champions.

ORLAND PARK — Two riders, who have their horses stabled at the Imperial Farm, rural Orland Park, won reserve championships with their mounts at the recent Ski-Hi Hunter Jumper championship show at Tinley Park.

Tawny Moody, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Moody of Orland Park, won the reserve championship in equitation for the 13 and under division.

The equitation classes are judged on the performance of the rider. Tawny was showing her horse, Seventh Heaven. She placed first in two classes, one of which was held over fences, and she placed third in two of her other classes, one of which also was over fences.

Brian Wellman of Chicago won a reserve championship in the working hunter division. He was showing his thoroughbred gelding, Sir Gwain. The division is judged on the performance of the horse and two classes over fences and one class on the flat must be entered.

This was the first show of the season for Imperial Farm horses. The barn is always open to visitors and interested persons are invited to stop and watch the activities.

ORLAND PARK — Carl Sandburg's baseball program will have two new faces this year in the coaching department and one less coach. Coach Bob Mazzone, has resigned from coaching baseball for personal reasons.

It was expected that Mazzone would be assistant varsity coach but it was announced there would be no assistant at the varsity level this year, and Mazzone did not want to return to coaching freshmen teams.

Mazzone will remain as a football coach in the fall.

Coach Ron Mellen will be in his first year as head varsity coach for the baseball team. Mellen, from St. Ambrose college, was head basketball and baseball coach at Mendel high school in Roseland before coming to Sandburg two years ago.

Mellen is stepping in for retired coach Cliff Eade. Coach Ed Pederson, who has spent his three years in professional baseball, will take over the freshmen team. Coach Arnie Vesley will return for his third year at the sophomore level. Vesley has produced two straight championships, including a 19 game unbeaten streak.

ORLAND PARK — The Carl Sandburg Batgirls have been picked for the coming season. The squad of girls consists of five seniors and five juniors. The ones chosen are seniors; Barb Kuzel, Bonnie MacNeal, Gail Hulquist, Cathy Lenkowski, and captain Sheri Jones. The Juniors are: Pam Kuncie, Patti Marshall, Dawn Cebond, Carla Zvonek, and Laurie Melton.

Seniors Sheri Jones, Cathy Lenkowski, and Gail Hulquist were all batgirls last year. The girls will wear blue-gold outfits and will handle the chores of score-keeping, chasing foul balls, and taking care of the bats.

There will be six girls at the home games, and four will go to the away games.

Coach Ron Mellen, was very happy with the turnout for the contest which saw more than 40 girls enter and said it was very hard to decide because all girls were qualified.

The sophomore team will also have batgirls. There were 12 girls chosen on the soph level. Sharon Kynberg, Pam Mason, Debbie Bowdway, Marie Lyons, Calleen Barrett, Pat O'Donnel, Marge O'Shea, Vicki Adams, Gail Bolton, Car Huetteman, Grettis Hill, and Sherry Wirth. The Sophomores are coached by Arnie Vesley. The Eagles will open against Bloom on Monday, April 3. The home opener is April 4 against Blue Island.

ORLAND PARK — The Sandburg sophomore basketball squad ended its season on an upswing last Wednesday as it captured second place in the Oak Forest sophomore tournament. The single elimination tourney featured eight area teams.

The Eagles won their first round game from Eisenhower, 39-34. Dirk VanDermeer led that attack with 13 points with Kerry Pozulp adding 12 points.

In the semi-finals the Eagles nipped Bremen High by the tally of 31-29. The low scoring Eagle victory was the third this season over the Braves. Kerry Pozulp was high for the Eagles with nine points in the game where total turnovers were close to the point production.

The finals against Thornwood High turned to disaster as the Eagles found themselves on the short end of a 61-29 score. Ironically, the Eagles led 13-7 at the end of the first quarter just prior to an avalanche of points by Thornwood.

Pozulp again was high for the Eagles with 11 points. His tournament total of 32 was high for the Eagles. The second-place effort was enough for a trophy. Tournament games included, the Eagles record stands at 11-10, an improvement over last year's record of 3-21.

Rayson begins slough drive

TINLEY PARK — Representative Leland H. Rayson, State Representative from Tinley Park, announced that legislative efforts will now begin for the appropriation funds (a joint $1.6 million) from the State of Illinois Department of Conservation to preserve the McGinnis Slough in Orland Park for a wildlife sanctuary and recreational use. Rep. Rayson said those incorporated municipalities and unincorporated communities affected by this project within a five mile radius are:

1. Orland Park	6,391
2. Westhaven	470
3. Tinley Park	15,000
4. Crestwood	5,543

5. Markham	16,000

12. Hickory Hills	13,176
Totals	122,229

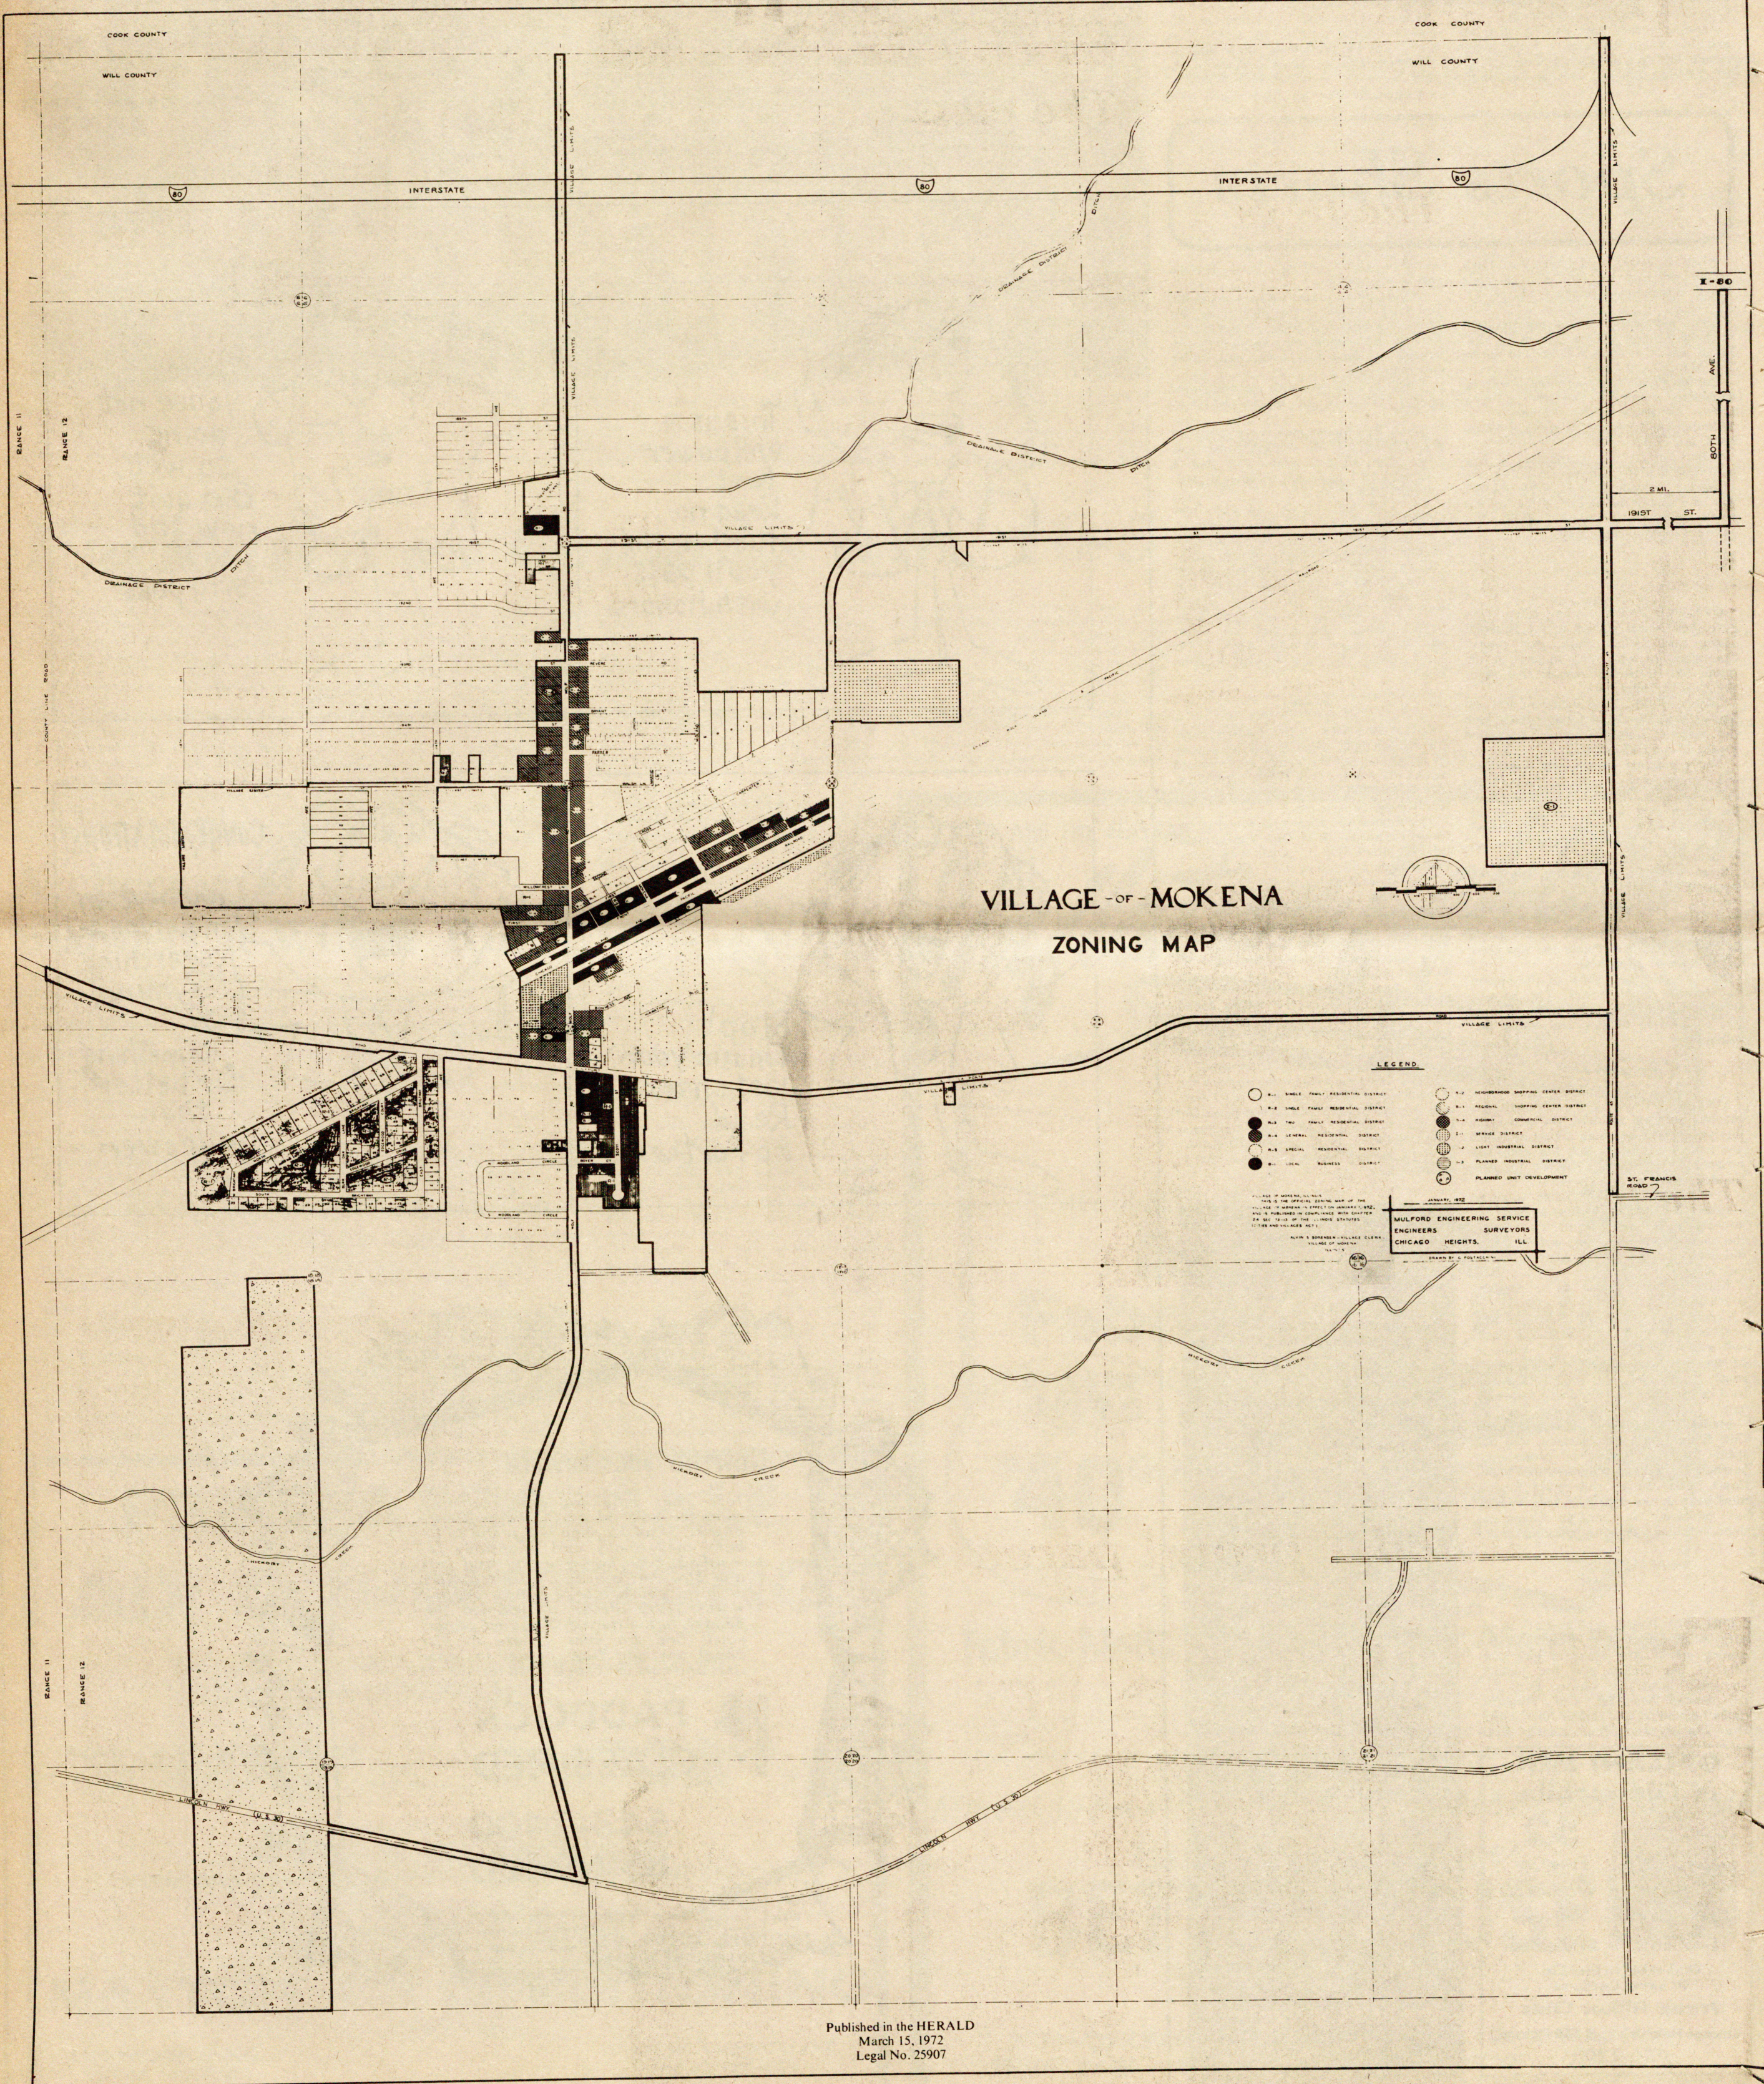

Orland Township	15,028
Bremen Township	93,906
Palos Township	33,100
Worth Township	155,834
Totals	297,868

Rep. Rayson reported that Dr. Barkhausen, Director of State Conservation, and Roland F. Eisenbeis of the Cook County Forest Preserve District, have made probing surveys and recommendations for the preservation of McGinnis Slough, which Slough contains a lake in a 315-acre area. "The one end of the channel is shallow, the other fishing channel is approximately 1300 feet in length and 6 feet deep. The drainage basin supplying water for McGinnis Slough is approximately 1800 acres in size, of which about 500 acres are within the town of Orland Park."

"The existing treatment plant in Orland Park runs its effluent into the small stream that empties into McGinnis Slough. Unfortunately, capacity of the plant is such that it is unable to properly treat the sewerage flows of the area. Consequently, this effluent is highly contaminated and has polluted McGinnis Slough. The Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago is in the process of completing an interceptor sewer which is anticipated for completion in 1973," Rayson said.

Rayson said the legislative appropriation for the fiscal year 1972 will be small (about $24,000) funds used for surveying and engineering with the plan to appropriate about $600,000 for the fiscal year 1973 to take effect after the interceptor has stopped future pollution. The Forest Preserve District will fund about $550,000 for its share with another $500,000 estimated to be spent on recreational facilities.

The teacher

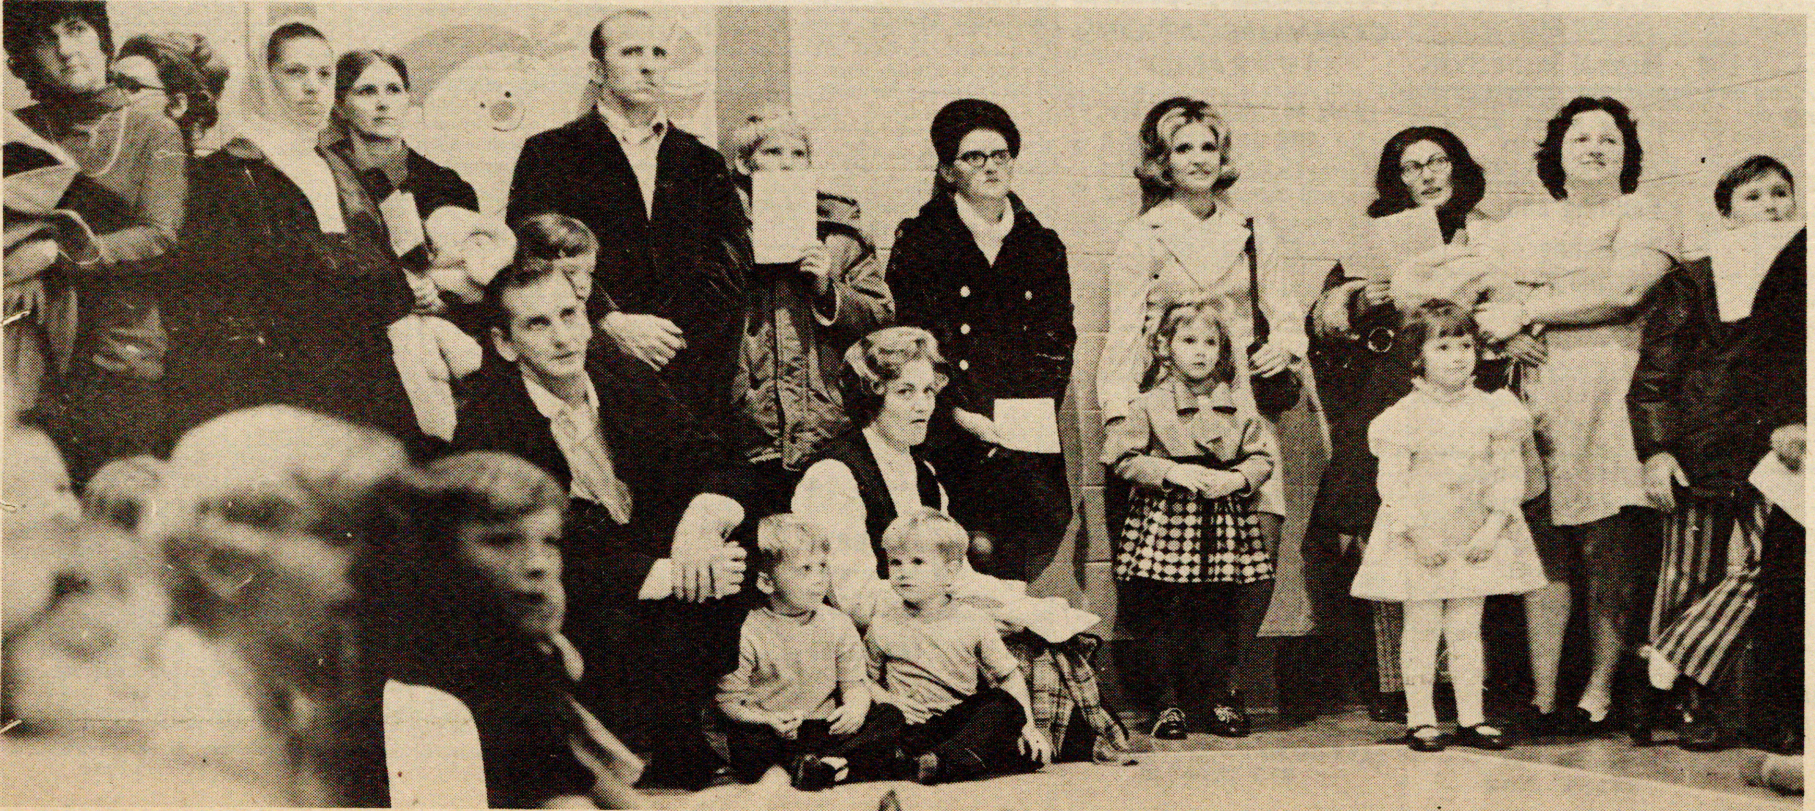

Few activities presented by our schools have stronger drawing power than the traditional school program, open to the parents. The contending high school basketball team might pull equally but it is doubtful if it would surpass the school program.

Parents, grandparents and family friends recently packed Oak Forest's Scarlet Oak School auditorium for one such crowd pleaser. Every inch of floor space was occupied and the body heat put the temperature at a near 98.6.

Nevertheless Music Director Christine Westerfield (at piano top photo), and the primary students of Scarlet Oak School commanded the close and appreciative attention of audience.

Principal Kenneth Perdue's prime concern during the evening was clearing a path through the audience in order that the actors and actresses might reach the stage to act out their classroom rehearsed parts.

Impaired youths aided

SOUTHWEST — A perceptually handicapped child is a child with minimal brain damage without intellectual retardation.

It is possible for a child to score within normal limits on tests, yet have serious difficulty learning certain things. Such a child may show a wide gap between his ability to understand events, experiences and ideas and his ability to learn to read, spell, write and compute numerically.

What specifically is a perceptual handicap?

The term refers to an impairment in the normal processes of perception, that is, in the basic ability of all human beings to cope with and to make sense out of the environment in which they live. It is a process as basic and automatic as eating, breathing, sleeping and moving. It functions without conscious direction, continuously taking in, selecting, and organizing countless sense impressions moment by moment. It is the basis for behavior.

A child becomes perceptually handicapped at some time during the child's development, possibly at birth, or after in some event that damages some of the tissue of the central nervous system.

It may have been a high fever, lack of oxygen, trauma occurring during a difficult delivery, or resulting from a severe fall, or automobile accident. In other words, some change that occurred in the central nervous system which interferes with its normal growth and activity. His intelligence may be superior, average or normal.

The child does not appear to be handicapped; his vision and hearing are normal. But he has an impairment in the normal process of perception—he misperceives. He overlooks important details or focuses on them so strongly that he misses the whole. He hears meanings but fails to attend to word structures and so is misled in their meanings.

The total outcome can lead to major frustrations. The child more often than not wants to keep up with others surrounding him. The challenge belongs to those teaching him; parents, and educators.

A child with a perceptual handicap carries the condition with him for years, perhaps indefinitely, like a short leg. He can use it but not as skillfully as if normal. His ability to use it grows as he grows but only if he is stimulated and encouraged to make the most of it.

He can be helped to learn the basic academic tools in spite of his impairment by teaching methods which minimize the disturbing effects of his handicaps or stimulate him to a more effective use of the impaired functions. He can be helped to compensate for his deficiencies by recognizing them and working against them so that later he can return to the regular classroom to continue his schooling.

It is most important that he receive the specific and individualized help he needs when his learning and behavior problems first become apparent in order to prevent the emotional tensions which arise with repeated failure, and the wrong learnings resulting from his distorted perceptions. He wants to learn, he wants to be in step with the others around him. The challenge of the educator is to show him how it can be done, and to sustain him in the arduous task life sets before him.

The South Suburban H.E.L.P. (Help Every Learner Perceive) was organized in 1966 with the idea of bringing together the people who were concerned about children with learning disabilities. It is an independent but state and nationally affiliated non profit organization. The working board consists mainly of dedicated mothers and fathers. The professional members are equally important and their attendance and interest are essential.

The organization wanted to create a local public awareness of the child with minimal brain dysfunction. They maintain files of current information in all related areas and distribute publications. They also arrange monthly meetings at the Sauk Trail School, Park Forest.

The group believes that through meeting and sharing mutual experiences, parents as well as children will benefit. Special education, along with a compassionate and well structured home and society for perceptually handicapped children can result in a completely normal adult.

More information on HELP can be obtained by writing to P.O. Box 104, Park Forest, Illinois, 60466.

The Southwest Cook County Cooperative Association for Special Education, 16555 S. Oak Park Ave., Tinley Park, and Special Educational Cooperative of South Cook County (SPEED) 18216 Harwood Ave., Homewood, have programs for the perceptually handicapped. The programs are continually being improved to offer the greatest possible help to the students.
